

Three Murders Shock Montreal

CALM BEFORE THE STORM

Marathon swimmer Ben Laughren was in calm water during morning part of strait attempt today, but at press time was "up to his ears" in trouble with choppy Race Rocks whirlpools. Trainer Ove Witt is in boat.

Big Ben Finds Race Rocks Rips Rough in Fine Show

By Radio-Telephone From Times Reporter Tony Dickason

At 1 p.m. today Victoria chef Ben Laughren was in the tide rips and whirlpools off Race Rocks in his fourth attempt to swim the Juan de Fuca Strait from Victoria to Port Angeles.

His distance from his starting point off the Chinese Cemetery was approximately 12 miles.

He entered the water off Harling Point at 5:49 a.m. under lowering skies. He swam the 50 yards from the accompanying vessel Meota to the rocky shore, touched briefly, waved and struck out for Port Angeles.

At 8 a.m. he was swimming at a brisk 32 strokes per minute pace with his unorthodox style. A tide was sweeping him eastward, but at 10 a.m. the tide started carrying him forward and toward Race Rocks.

At 11:30 Ben was swimming strongly just east of Pedder Bay. The tide that had carried him westward had slackened and Ben had to keep swimming briskly to follow navigator Stan Page's plan to round Race Rocks and catch the eastward tide south of Becher Bay.

Page is a new navigator for Ben.

Shortly after takeoff Ben shouted to the accompanying trio of vessels that he would be in Port Angeles "for tea and crumpets."

He was being fed orange juice and glucose every hour. At his noon feeding, he was puffing and blowing slightly and told trainer Ove Witt that "I feel very warm. I have all the feeling in my body."

Aboard the Meota with Page and Witt is Ben's wife.

Laughren has now been in the water the longest of his four swim attempts. His best previous time was five hours and 35 minutes, on his third attempt.

Before taking off today, the 270-pound ex-wrestler told the Times he intended to put every bit of his great big heart into this strait bid.

If he succeeds in making it to Port Angeles, he will be the first swimmer to swim the strait from Victoria to Port Angeles. Only swimmer to conquer the strait so far is Bert Thomas, who swam from Port Angeles to Victoria last year.

This is the 43rd attempt on the strait, dating back to 1933, when three swimmers tried and failed.

SIMMONS DUE HERE TODAY

Ted Simmons of Toronto, who plans a Juan de Fuca Strait attempt in the June 15-17 period, was due to arrive in Victoria today.

He is accompanied by his coach, Steve Mellors. The party travelled to Vancouver by train, were to arrive here via Nanaimo.

It is not known if Fearnley Wheatcroft, another Mellors-coached swimmer, is also in the party.

RAIL RATES GO UP STARTING JULY 1

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners said today it would grant an interim freight rate increase to the country's major railways July 1. Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways have asked for a general freight rate boost of 15 per cent. They also want an increase of 25 cents a ton on shipments of coal and coke.

Announcing the board's decision before railway counsel presented their arguments, Justice J. D. Kearney, board chairman, said the measure was to give the CNR and CPR "first aid" relief from mounting wage costs.

First PGE Train Running Today

But Railway Minister's Bets In Jeopardy Until It Arrives

VANCOUVER (CP)—A work train left Squamish at 11 a.m. today to make the 42-mile run to North Vancouver over the newly completed link of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. It was due in North Vancouver at 4:15 p.m., PGE officials said.

Unless slides prevent the trip from being completed, it will be the first train to make the journey over the last link of a railway joining North Vancouver with the rich interior of B.C. an official today said there had been no slides between Squamish and Horseshoe Bay in 24 hours.

LAST SPIKE

The last spike of the new link was driven at 4:15 p.m. Sunday by the tug Mogul, which accompanied the ceremony of cheering from railways minister, Ralph Chetwynd. Mr. Chetwynd had bet $800 in hats that the first train would run over the extension by today.

Einar Gunderson, PGE general manager, looked on with Mr. Chetwynd during the ceremony. Bill Smetanuk, 67-year-old Rumanian, brought out of retirement to supervise the track-laying from Squamish to North Vancouver, drove the last spike.

Closing of the gap in the PGE's 469-mile line to Prince George began in February, 1955, when crews set out from Squamish and Horseshoe and worked to meet each other. They used 150,000 ties, 150 tons of rail, and 2,000,000 pounds of blasting dynamite before they were finished. The total cost was $10,500,000.

Premier Bennett said today the running of the first work train over the southern extension of the PGE had opened "a new era of development" for the province.

"It means the old white elephant is now a very important animal," the premier said. "We are proud to have made this railway into a first class enterprise."

Mr. Bennett said there is still some ballasting to be done before the first passenger train is ready to run over the extension early in August.

AOTS Organizes 51 New Clubs Convention Told

GRAVENHURST, Ont. (CP)—Two hundred and fifty delegates moved into this Lake Muskoka resort during the weekend for the third national convention of the United Church of Canada service clubs known as AOTS (as one that serves).

Reports told of the formation of 51 additional clubs, bringing the total to 288 having a membership of about 15,000. Among the newcomers were clubs at Burn, Nfld., and Whitehorse, Y.T.

Officers elected included: D. J. Sherwood, Toronto, president; J. A. Robinson, Vancouver, honorary president; D. R. Poole, Vancouver, advisory secretary.

Vice-presidents include Charles Burrit, Burnaby, B.C.; Allan Jones, Calgary; Frank Hill, Moose Jaw, Sask.; Dave Coulter, Winnipeg.

Committee chairmen include Mr. Justice Harold Thompson, Regina.

The 1958 convention will be at Saskatoon.

Screaming Boy, 14, Thrown Into River

MONTREAL (CP)—Two young boys and a woman were brutally slain in Montreal this weekend as the city was shocked with a rash of apparently unconnected killings.

One boy was thrown screaming to drown in the St. Lawrence river and the other died from head wounds inflicted by a rough piece of concrete. The woman was beaten and stabbed to death.

The woman, 27-year-old Aldea Levesque, was beaten around the eyes with a hammer and suffered knife wounds in her throat. Her fiancé, a 30-year-old salesman with a history of mental illness, gave himself up to police early this morning.

Police said they knew nothing of the slaying until the man came to detective headquarters and said he had killed the woman in her three-room apartment in residential Rosemount.

Yvon Lafrance, 14, of suburban Ville la Salle, and a job.

Angry Crowds Threaten Carnival

Meanwhile, angry Montreal North residents forced the temporary closing of the travelling carnival for which Robert is believed to have headed when last seen. Police dispersed about 100 persons Sunday night as they milled around the entrance shouting at the workers inside.

Police said the crowd apparently believed the killer was a member of the carnival and the owner closed early "for his own protection."

The Lafrance boy and a companion had bicycled to the riverbank to fish. The victim's companion, Robert Morissette, 13, told police "two grown-up men came up to us," grabbed Yvon and threw him, screaming and helpless, into the river.

The boy's friend escaped and ran sobbing to police. Officers searched until they found the body in a culvert into which it had been swept by the current.

Police said there was another witness to the crime—an elderly man who had been fishing nearby. He backed up the Morissette boy's description.

He said the victim had no chance to escape the sudden attack.

Robert Jones was missed by his parents early Friday night. He apparently had left after dinner for a Montreal North fairground after being refused permission to "help blow up some balloons" there.

An autopsy is expected to determine whether the boy was killed by a sex deviate. He was found fully clothed.

Cash for Pay Cheques Granted to Government

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition leader Drew today announced his party's willingness to permit speedy passage of the government's June supply bill.

He made the Commons announcement after Prime Minister St. Laurent promised there will be no early adjournment of Parliament if the bill is given speedy passage.

Prime Minister St. Laurent had asked Friday for quick approval of an interim supply bill to replenish the government's "virtually exhausted" treasury.

Rising at the House opening, the prime minister said if a month's supply of money to carry on government financial operations is granted at the present time "it would be our intention to proceed with the business of the session in the normal way."

Before the end of this month, the government would ask for a further grant of interim supply and continue the session.

Later, the House moved into committee of the whole to discuss a resolution preceding introduction of an interim supply bill authorizing the spending of $301,568,166.51.

The amount includes one-twelfth of the main estimates, $264,409,639.92; one-twelfth of six special items covering seasonal work, $652,148.34; and one-quarter of the supplementary estimates tabled last week, $36,506,378.25.

Evelyn White, Key Figure Of Thaw Shooting, Stricken

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Evelyn Nesbit, a beauty of 50 years ago and a key figure in one of the most sensational murder trials of the era, suffered a cerebral stroke Saturday.

Park View Hospital attendants described her condition Sunday as satisfactory.

Miss Nesbit, now 71, has been living alone in an apartment where she pursued a career as a sculptor and art instructor.

She was practically penniless until 20th Century-Fox bought the rights to her life story and made the movie "The Girl in the Red Velvet Swing."

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued its recovery today, keeping step with the recovery progress of President Eisenhower.

SOCREDS WOULD REVIVE SASK. 'KICKBACK' CASE

REGINA (CP)—When a Social Credit government is elected in Saskatchewan, the Rawluk-government insurance "kickback" case will be examined by a royal commission, Don Wilson of Nanaimo, B.C., said Saturday.

In 1952, J. O. Rawluk charged that Financial Agencies Ltd. of which he was managing director, paid "kickbacks" to provincial treasurer C. M. Fines and to M. F. Allore, former manager of the Saskatchewan government insurance office, through Dr. M. C. Shumatcher, in exchange for business directed to it.

The legislature's crown corporations committee investigated the charges and reported early in 1953 that they were wholly unwarranted and unfounded.

Prince Bertil Greets Margaret at Airport

STOCKHOLM—Princess Margaret flew into Sweden today and was met by 44-year-old Prince Bertil.

About a dozen newsmen showed up to see the prince welcome the 26-year-old princess at the airport here.

The prince looked at the newsmen and said "Now you will have some fun, boys."

Some newspapers have speculated on a romance between the prince and princess.

But the welcome ceremony went according to the polite protocol. Prince Bertil smiled brightly at Princess Margaret and she smiled back. After greeting they boarded a car together and drove six miles into the city.

Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh spent half an hour today aboard the Canadian destroyer St. Laurent.

They expressed their thanks to the crew of the ship which, with two British vessels, accompanied the royal yacht Britannia on its trip from England to Sweden last week.

The royal couple made similar visits to the British warships, Defender and Delight.

AUSTRALIA HURRICANE DAMAGE $22 MILLIONS

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—The worst storm in 25 years battered 500 miles of the New South Wales coast Sunday with hurricane-force winds causing damage estimated at more than $22,000,000.

Sydney was a city of chaos as winds up to 84 miles an hour—the second strongest ever recorded here—roared through the streets, tearing roofs off houses, smashing windows, toppling walls and blowing down electric wires.

The storm was felt from Newcastle, about 100 miles north of Sydney, to the Victoria state border. Ferry services in Sydney harbor were suspended. Mountainous waves, seldom seen in the well-protected basin, buffeted steamers and tore dozens of small pleasure craft from their moorings and sank them.

ROYAL VISIT TO SWEDEN

Crowds Hail Duke On 35th Birthday

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Britain's Royal Family celebrated a birthday, prayed for President Eisenhower and attended the opening of the 1956 Olympic equestrian games Sunday. That wound up an official three-day visit to Sweden.

The Queen accompanied Sweden's King Gustaf VI to Olympic Stadium for the festive formal opening of the eight-day contests and cast an experienced eye on the horseflesh assembled for the gruelling duels.

The Duke of Edinburgh grinned broadly as he rode in the carriage of Sweden's Queen Louise to the games. It was his 35th birthday and along the route of the ride thousands of Swedes seemed to know all about it, and shouted congratulations.

Earlier, just after breakfast, the duke got congratulations by telephone from Prince Charles and Princess Anne. At the British community church the Queen and the duke prayed for the recovery of President Eisenhower. They will spend the next week aboard the royal yacht Britannia. Princess Margaret will join them today.

The Queen plans a cocktail party Wednesday for Olympic competitors, but the remainder of the Royal Family's stay will be on an informal basis.

Saturday the Queen got a rare insight into what the 'typical' Swedish family man is like today; she found out he's apt to lock himself out of his home.

The Queen and the duke visited the 'typical' Swedish home of K. O. Larsson, his wife and son Hans. Larsson was waiting outside.

Then he escorted them promptly to his front door. It was locked. And Larsson didn't have the key.

Pale and nervous, Larsson started punching the doorbell. Seconds ticked by as the Queen waited politely under a blazing sun.

Eventually, Larsson's wife realized something had gone wrong. She opened the door. With a sigh of relief Larsson escorted the Queen into the house.

Swedish Music Critics Pan Barbara Pentland Composition

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Swedish music critics have given a cool reception to Barbara Pentland's composition for the world musical festival held here last Friday.

Curt Berg, music critic of Sweden's largest daily, the Dagens Nyheter, wrote: "A Canadian lady by the name of Barbara Pentland, residing in Winnipeg, had manufactured a string quartet. She was very nice looking."

Kajsa Rooter of the Svenska Dagbladet wrote that while Miss Pentland's composition was in its way ambitious, it could more nearly be described as a pathetic practice in modern counterpoint.

Folke Toenblom of the Morgon-Tidningen wrote that her composition contained nothing at all.

The critics were unenthusiastic about the musical festival as a whole.

Canada Arms Cut Asked by Russia

'Follow Our Example' Bulganin Advises St. Laurent in Letter

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Nikolai Bulganin has sent a letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent urging Canada to follow Russia's example and reduce armed forces, the Soviet news agency Tass said Sunday.

The letter, similar to one Bulganin sent Prime Minister Antonio Segni of Italy, was delivered last Friday.

Earlier the Soviet leader sent letters on disarmament to Prime Minister Eden, President Eisenhower, French Premier Guy Mollet and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

In the letter to St. Laurent Bulganin said:

"I would like to exchange views with you on such an important international problem as the disarmament one, in the examination of which both our countries are taking part in the United Nations disarmament subcommittee."

"It must be said now that many years of discussions in the United Nations have failed to yield positive results. However, we cannot help recognizing that the solution of this problem, particularly with the appearance of such new types of weapons of mass destruction as atom and hydrogen bombs, is becoming more and more urgent."

"I think, Mr. Prime Minister, that you will agree with me that in the present conditions of a definite easing of the international tension there are favorable possibilities for the taking by the states of concrete measures concerning the reduction of armaments and of armed forces."

"The Soviet government has received with satisfaction the statement of the foreign minister of Canada, L. B. Pearson, made in the House of Commons on March 20, that Canada will do all she can towards the reaching of an effective disarmament, which would help to reduce the international tension and would ease the settlement of other unsolved problems."

"We are deeply convinced that the implementation by the states of measures for the reduction of their armaments and armed forces, before the moment at which an international agreement concerning that problem will be reached, would promote the establishment of more confidence between the states and the strengthening of universal peace."

"Guided by these very considerations, the Soviet government took the decision on a new and considerable reduction of the armed forces of the Soviet Union by 1,200,000 men accompanied by a corresponding reduction of armaments and military expenditure over and above the earlier carried out reduction of the Soviet armed forces by 640,000 men."

In Ottawa, an external affairs department spokesman said the Russian-language letter was delivered by Russian Ambassador Dmitri S. Chuvahin and is under study by the prime minister and the department.

Comox Air Show Speed Spectacle

Inverted flying at the speed of sound, precision bombing, and a spectacular finale were the highlights of the big annual Air Force Day celebration Saturday at the Comox RCAF station.

An estimated 25,000 persons saw the breath-taking display.

The show started with a lumbering Canso aircraft taking off like a fighter under the mighty thrust of two roaring, smoking JATO rockets, and ended with a T-33 jet trainer making an eye-level swoop across the runway.

As it approached the crowd it dipped to the airstrip, and snatched up a banner bearing in huge block letters, "The End."

In between were displays by Lancasters, the CF-100 all-weather fighter, and Vampire jets.

DIRECT HIT
Three 30-ton Lancaster bombers flew in formation over the field, then climbed in a "Prince of Wales" break. Later they gave an exhibition of bombing, resulting in narrow misses by two aircraft and a direct hit with a "stick" of bombs from the third.

One of the stars of the show was FO Gerry Gagne, who took off in a CF-100 in a mock scramble, and concluded his exhibition with a 10-second pass over the field upside down. The aircraft can manage only 12 seconds of inverted flight before "conking out."

While a sailplane built on the station soared overhead, a DC-3 executed a mock supply drop, sending 10 packages earthward on 10 candy-striped parachutes.

Five stars of the ground display were aircraft from McChord air force base in Washington, including a giant C-118 Command transport, Navy Neptune anti-submarine bomber, F-86D Sabre, and a Scorpion all-weather fighter.

Children were fascinated by a mechanical man—a mixture of oil drums and the skill of station electronics experts—that could walk, talk, and even shake hands.

Small boys swarmed over a gun turret that did everything but fire live rounds, and adults were intrigued by a CF-100 instrument and control panel that permitted actual operation of aircraft components.

Soviet Friendly Attitude More Dangerous—Adenauer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer called on the West today to relax "even for one moment" its vigilance in the face of current friendly talk from Russia.

Adenauer called the present tactics "more dangerous than the former aggressive conduct" of the Kremlin. He said the men in the Kremlin "are still not prepared to remove the main causes of the tension of the world."

Adenauer's remarks were in an address prepared for a luncheon given in his honor by the board of governors of Yale University. Earlier the statesman received an honorary degree of doctor of laws during Yale University commencement exercises.

"Throughout the world, the Soviets aggravate existing conflicts and endeavor to undermine the West's position in an unscrupulous manner. Above all they want to smash first the mighty protective shield of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and to drive the United States from Europe so that Europe will fall like a ripe fruit into the Soviet lap."

Two Army Men Die in Crash At Air Show

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two Canadian Army officers were killed Saturday when their light reconnaissance plane crashed while demonstrating a supply drop before thousands of spectators attending an annual Air Force Day show at Stevenson field here.

The RCAF identified the victims as Maj. T. J. O'Brien, Royal Canadian Artillery, officer commanding the light aircraft school at Rivers, Man., joint air training centre, and Lieut. W. R. B. Chaplin, Army Service Corps staff pilot at the school.

Maj. O'Brien is survived by his wife Louise at Rivers, and parents at Dodsland, Sask., while Lieut. Chaplin is survived by his wife Rita at Rivers and father R. Chaplin of Edmonton. The plane, a single-engine Lysander, had just swooped across the field from north to south in front of the crowd to drop four 100-pound supply canisters. As it neared the south side of the airport at an altitude of about 300 feet, it banked sharply to the left. The nose went up and it stalled.

The plane then side-slipped into a grassy area off the end of the runway and burst into flames.

A small group of spectators was nearby, and two men and a woman rushed to try to help the two officers, only occupants of the plane. They were driven back by intense heat.

Esquimalt Will Explain Tax Setup to Taxpayers

Esquimalt ratepayers, alarmed over the province's equalization of assessment, can have their taxes explained at the municipal hall, Reeve A. C. Wurgel said today.

The reeve said he is "a little concerned regarding the way equalization has reacted to the disadvantage of certain residents."

At a public meeting last Wednesday the majority of complaints were against tax increases, despite an unchanged mill rate.

Complying with a provincial government order in 1955, Esquimalt reduced land assessment 20 per cent, and increased assessment of improvements 35 per cent. Most tax bills were

38 EXECUTED FOR REVOLT IN ARGENTINA

Peronista Rebels Quickly Crushed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's military regime pushed a determined hunt today for leaders of a bloody weekend revolt staged by army and civilian followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron.

The government announced firing squads executed 38 rebels in speedy retaliation. It indicated many more would face a similar fate as courts martial, quickly convened under martial law, sat around the clock.

The executions were carried out under the martial law provisions. Argentina's civil penal code provides no death penalty.

Security forces swooped down on known Peronistas in many Argentine cities. Some 500 civilians were reported arrested in Rosario, 11 at Santa Fe, 50 at Santiago del Estero, and 20 at Corrientes, Mendoza, site of an abortive plot earlier this year, was virtually sealed off as authorities mounted a special guard and ordered five arrests.

INSURGENTS CRUSHED

The insurgents struck at two points in the federal capital. At the same time they staged uprisings in La Plata, 35 miles southeast of Buenos Aires; Santa Rosa, capital of La Pampa province in central Argentina, and Rosario, 180 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

Loyalist forces directed by the vice-president, Admiral Isaac Rojas, quickly smothered the revolt in Buenos Aires and Rosario. Jet fighters and navy bombers finally smashed rebel holdouts in La Plata and Santa Rosa.

FATAL FALL FROM BOAT

WILLIAMS LAKE — George Shade, 23, of Abbotsford was drowned at Chimney Lake, 18 miles southeast of here, Sunday. Shade and his cousin, Edwin Litzemberger of Williams Lake, were fishing from a boat when Shade suffered a leg cramp. Police said he stood up to relieve the cramp and fell over, upsetting the boat.

Drop in Fraser Level Ends Threat of Flood

VANCOUVER (CP) — The immediate threat of flooding along the lower reaches of the Fraser River has ended.

Heavy week-long rain had prolonged the possibility of floods, but when the rain stopped on Sunday flood control experts said the big danger had passed.

High tides backed up the muddy water for about 30 miles from the river's mouth near New Westminster, 12 miles south of here. Some 20 families were forced out of their homes, but officials said late Sunday night the danger point had passed.

The rain loosened railroad embankments and two passenger diesels and two freight trains were derailed by rockslides 120 miles east of here. The slides covered part of the Canadian Pacific Railway's main line to a depth of up to six feet in places.

Vancouver-bound trains were delayed as much as nine hours Sunday and company officials said trains today would be subject to three-hour delays after being rerouted over the Canadian National system.

President Eisenhower

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S unique place in the affections of all the free peoples is suddenly revealed when he is stricken with misfortune. Such is this man's genius of friendship that everywhere political supporters and opponents alike deplore his illness as friends. The entire world awaits with a deep personal anxiety the news from the sick room in Washington.

Apart altogether from these feelings, which do him so much honor, the Government of the United States has suffered a second grave misfortune within a year. The American Constitution concentrates so much power in the President that his incapacity, even for a few weeks, is certain to sap the energies of the administration and at a peculiarly unfortunate time.

Some of the President's most important policies, among them his foreign aid program, are now grinding through the mills of the Congress. To succeed there they require all his power of persuasion and all his unequalled prestige with the people. He is absent when he is most needed. It is idle to say, as the Republican politicians no doubt will say, that business will go on as usual. It cannot go on as usual, it must falter in a thousand places, without the direction of the one man equipped by legal power to manage it.

The longer effects of Mr. Eisenhower's illness cannot be foreseen yet. His doctors say that he is recovering satisfactorily, that his present collapse is not associated with the heart attack of last September and that he should be quite able to seek re-election in the autumn.

In a medical sense this may well be true, and, if true, is good news for everybody. In a political sense the illness can hardly fail to have large consequences. It is for the American people alone to conduct their own elections but to foreigners it will seem almost unthinkable that a man who has been critically ill twice within nine months can be expected to maintain the almost superhuman burdens of the Presidency for another four and a half years.

Should the President decide not to run—and that decision must be his alone—the whole balance of American politics will be instantly altered. For if Mr. Eisenhower, in health, can hardly be defeated it is equally clear that no other Republican can hope to be elected.

The Democratic Party convention which, until a few days ago, seemed fated to nominate the runner-up, could select the next President. The struggle for the nomination will certainly become fierce and incalculable if Mr. Eisenhower decides that he has already contributed to the nation all that his health will endure.

The next few weeks therefore, will determine not only the future of the President's private life but in all probability the course of American politics and hence, to a great extent, the course of world events.

Homathko and a Power Cable

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA Power Commission is sending another survey party into the mainland area above Bute Inlet to determine the feasibility of hydro development on the Homathko river. If the potential of that waterway proves up—if it can be harnessed—a vast quantity of power would be available for transmission to Vancouver Island.

Such a project might solve the supply problem on the Island. Estimates place the possible output as high as 1,000,000 horsepower. It is to be hoped the plan is practical from engineering and economic points of view and can be carried through without destroying important fisheries resources.

Certainly the size of the survey party being sent into the region and the extent of the preliminary studies indicate the possibility of major developments. Faced as it is with the problem of finding new power sources for Island industry, present and future, the commission will not overlook any possibilities.

Engineering problems are reportedly immense, but not necessarily insurmountable. And if transmission facilities can be installed, the undertaking could proceed in stages.

The 1,000,000 horsepower potential is viewed as the ultimate limit. Before it could be achieved, however, some firm answers to fisheries questions are required.

As the scheme is viewed in some quarters, full development would entail another mountain-tunneling plan similar to that at Kitimat in order to divert Chilko Lake waters westward to the sea.

To be effective, that would require a dam, possibly a low one, on the Chilko River and at that point power generation would run into conflict with fisheries because of a peculiarity in sockeye spawning in the Chilko.

Adult salmon spawn in the river. Newly hatched fish, emerging from the gravel, swim against the current into Chilko Lake and feed there for a year. Adult salmon could negotiate a fishway by-passing a low dam and get into the lake, but the adults don't go that far. There is no assurance that newly-hatched fish would be able to make the journey into the lake through a man-made artificial channel. Such a scheme has not been tried. Most fingerlings, of course, go downstream to lake feeding grounds before going to sea. The Chilko sockeye, like a small run in the Harrison River, is the exception.

There are spawning grounds in the lower Homathko, also, but they need not cause undue concern because the fish do not progress through that section of the river called the Canyon and hydro development could be undertaken above that section.

Quite possibly the fisheries and power interests could be reconciled by a step-by-step hydro program. It might not assure the absolute maximum of power from future installations. On the other hand it could produce a great deal of energy without jeopardizing Homathko salmon.

These are considerations which will not be ignored as the Power Commission proceeds with its investigations. They will not, however, be the cause of immediate concern. First on the program is the survey to determine whether or not the project is reasonable from engineering and economic viewpoints.

The commission is looking ahead to an Island demand for power which it expects to be doubled in six years. Having invaded Strathcona Park for an interim supply at a tragic cost in scenery and recreation facilities, it renews its interest in mainland sources with the ultimate possibility of cable transmission to the Island.

Back From the Brink

COMMUNIST CANDIDATES have suffered a significant reversal in Italian municipal elections. The increase in leftist influence which has troubled Italy in the post-war years apparently has been halted. The Communists dropped about one million votes—20 per cent of their balloting strength—compared with the elections of 1951. Christian Democratic candidates (the Government party) and allied centre groups gained in most areas.

While this, of course, was not a national election, the close association of municipal politics with national parties makes the contest a valuable indication of larger trends. On this basis it appears that Moscov's influence in Italian affairs is declining. The western country which at times has teetered on the brink of communist domination has swung back to a firmer democratic footing.

This is particularly interesting because it is the first such election campaign since the Kremlin turned on its new charm. The right-about-face of many Soviet policies, the revilement of Stalin who was so long revered—these developments must have confused many Italian fellow-travelers as they have confused communists in Russia and abroad. The result has been a falling away of fringe supporters—the 20 per cent of followers who could be decisive in the Communist Party's future.

Time for Ross Bay Action

THE GORGE HAS BEEN DECLARED safe for swimming, and good news that is, too.

But the Ross Bay area on the city's waterfront is still marred by signs warning of pollution. The condemned area is not a place where warm water bathing can be enjoyed. The sweep of the tide prevents the sun's heat from making any appreciable difference in the water temperature there.

At the same time it is a location where citizens should be able to enjoy beach recreation, and it is a sea-front section where hardy small children should be able to play in the water without causing their parents concern over infection.

The Gorge, it appears, has been restored as a safe swimming hole. That still leaves the city with a major problem on its hands. It can remove the pollution from Ross Bay if it undertakes proper treatment of sewage which escapes into the strait from the outfall there. In time some action will be required. The authorities should turn their attention to the problem now.

Welcoming the Prodigal Son

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

It is quite a while since I have quoted you any Gwyn Thomas... almost two months. Let me quote you one (1) item from his novel "The Stranger at My Side". One of the characters, Edwin, has just lost his job and is off on a spree to forget things. He wants to forget not only his unemployment but the too-kindly theories he has lately held about other people's worries. In order to make him have more fun on the spree, his companion Theo encourages Edwin to over-tip a waiter, explaining that "this kind of casual patronage is a splendid grease for the wheels of any life gone a little slow."

"You're right," says Edwin, "Pennies and the thought of pennies keep us on all fours." He then says he isn't going to apply for unemployment insurance. "To accept that pittance is to stand in the very centre of the black farce of glum-faced obligations."

"True, boy," says Theo, "Never let the community put its hooks on you. You should never put up with any nonsense from a life-process that has death attached to it. Never let yourself be partially-insulted before the grave comes along to do the job properly."

It is only fair to warn you that the whole book is not so entrancing as this one choice snatch. That's the trouble with quoting good bits from books. Your reader or hearer imagines that the book is entirely made up of jewels, with no trace showing of the background onto which the author has stitched them. Long ago, when I was about twenty, I read a witty snatch of the good Dr. Francois Rabelais to a contemporary. She at once bought herself a copy of the all-too-complete works, with all the cubic yards of monotonous dirt, routine dirt, playground dirt, and she was appalled.

She wasn't a prude. Anything but. You don't have to be a prude to turn up your nose at the sight of a great wise, and witty man rolling deliberately in the mud, and at his expecting an automatic laugh from his automatic bath-room-and-barnyard japes.

In fact, it is mainly secret prudes and frustrated types who get any kick from such half-witted snickering. There are two ways to identify such types. One is by seeing how pathetically easy they are to shock. If you go one step beyond their own formula for laughter. The other is to see how often they use the words racy, earthy, salty, gusto, etc., to describe and excuse their chosen fare.

Well, my friend threw her copy of Rabelais away in disappointment. Not for her was the Rabelais who has been called the past-master of all arts and diversions, the teacher of wise men, the comfort of an afflicted world, the uplifter of fools, the energiser of the lethargic, the doctor of the gouty, the pleasant introducer of inevitable death, the general solace of mankind, and much else.

NOT for her the Rabelais who is said to give you the innermost and animating savor of the few good things on earth... who gives you "their utter flavor and their saving power in the quintessential words of his incontestably regal lips." No, sir. She regarded him as unreadable, and she felt this was somewhat my fault. Because she felt I had guaranteed the whole book to be exactly like the one bit I read to amuse her.

This was an extreme example, but in a lesser way it happens all the time. Other people do it to me, too. Time and again I have bought a book on the strength of two or three tempting snatches, quoted in a review, later to find they were the only two or three memorable things in the whole work. All the same, the bit of Gwyn Thomas I have just copied out for you is highly typical Gwyn Thomas. He does say that sort of thing dozens and dozens of times in any one novel. And if all his novels are much the same as each other on this account, they are like nobody else's, and I can stand quite a few more of them. I have read six in the last four months, with only one disappointment. The disappointing one was not like the others.

THE INSULT AND talking of that quotation, with its remark about the grave being the final and biggest insult of a life to which death is attached, a pair of mine was flicking through a back number of Life magazine the other day, and a good portion of it was devoted to photographs of bodies. Shit, bodies, drowned bodies, and so on. Missing on this indignity, he said, "I wonder why on earth they call it Life. It is so often just the opposite."

BULLYING

I LAST week I made a few remarks on the subject of parents bullying and dragging their children, and thus inviting rebellion. Only in the last line did I refer to the opposite case, where the children bully the parents and tyrannize over them. I didn't refer at all to the commonest case of all, where social pressure and current theories bully the parents. Or to the combined pressure of the kids and of society and of theories, when the kids say "But all the other kids are doing it!"

This pressure exists even when the statement is a lie, and all the other kids are not doing it. There should be an agency which will release information on what all the other kids actually are doing. To ensure uniform pressure, and leave all parts bearing an equal strain. All parts, and all parents.

NO CULTURAL DESERT HERE

As a relatively new Canadian, very much in love with British Columbia and passionately interested in the arts, I found the editorial page of last Tuesday's Times melancholy reading.

Here was Bruce Hutchison, whose writing I have long admired, pontificating gloomily about the dearth of artistic life in Victoria and Vancouver. In another corner of the same page an anonymous editorial, toying nervously with the problem of a native Canadian culture, declared that "a Canadian culture cannot be imported. The genuine article must be home-grown."

These two viewpoints reflect the ambivalent attitude commonly to be met with among educated Canadians. In one breath they will brand their country as a cultural desert; in the next they will give utterance to a rather pathetic chauvinism "We have no culture; but if we get one it must be home-grown, the genuine article."

Misunderstanding

This is the burden of my lay, and both aspects of it seem to me to be rooted in a complete misunderstanding. In the first place, British Columbia at this moment has at least four artists of the stature of Emily Carr. The province leads the rest of Canada in the field of graphic art.

Don't take my word for it. Here is what the Director of the National Gallery said less than a month ago, in the "Week-end" magazine section of the Sunday Times: "There are more good artists in B.C. per square mile than in all the rest of the country."

Does that sound as if B.C. was a cultural desert?

I have become quite accustomed now to the look of polite incredulity that passes over the educated British Columbian's face when I say that B.C.—which is to say Vancouver—is the centre of Canadian painting today. This unwillingness to believe that anything really good can come out of Vancouver springs partly from origins which I shall leave to the psychologists to explain, but mostly from ignorance and lack of interest.

To substantiate this sweeping statement let me list some of the distinctions that B.C. painters have won in the past two or three years.

In 1954, B. C. Binning of Vancouver,

Sunday Jay-Walking

Every Sunday I watch people from Centennial Church jay-walking with their children across Gorge road.

Is this the only feat of derring-do their religion leaves them? Surely making this a slow zone is pandering to law-breakers as past accidents have not occurred in crosswalks.

The city could enrich its coffers by a few fines for jay-walking and double parking in this area.

PLAY FAIR.

Shorten the Gossip

May I have a space in your "As Our Readers See It"?

The B.C. Telephone Company is doing its utmost to give the people of Victoria service, by expansion, service re moving phones, etc., with courtesy and promptness. If the public whom they serve would only co-operate by shortening their calls, I am speaking of just personal, gossip calls (both men and women) so those on party lines could use their phones, for which they also pay a small charge. It would cut down on complaints to the office, nerves would be less frayed and tempers not lost.

If they wish to visit by phone, limit the time to at least five minutes, and before dialing, listen for the dial tone. Give others a chance to call their friends, make appointments, order foods, consult a nurse or doctor. Trying for 1½ hours to make a call (with a pause in between) and finding the line is continually busy, is very annoying, and we are paying for something we have no service from, owing to the general public—not the company.

No Place for Zoo

In June 6th issue of the Victoria Daily Times we read that the establishment of a children's zoo in Beacon Hill Park is under consideration at city hall.

The main attraction of this park is its quiet beauty, unmarred by any such innovations as the proposed zoo.

Children today are already familiar with domestic birds and animals in their natural environment. It therefore appears quite unnecessary to go to the expense of imprisoning an assorted group of creatures to be "stroked", "fondled" and otherwise mauled by tots.

If there is $2,500 a year available funds for yearly operation of this zoo, and if Mr. M. H. King has materials and labor to offer, it would seem a better idea to build an aviary for the park birds. The present one is entirely outmoded and too small.

It will really be "a fine thing and of great educational value" when children are taught properly to feed, house and otherwise care for those pets in their own homes. This instruction should be given in the schools.

There is a place for everything. Lovely Beacon Hill Park does not need the addition of a noisy farmyard.

No Bed

We are compelled by the government through the five percent sales tax to pay for B.C.H.S., although there is nothing like sufficient number of beds to accommodate us when the need arises.

The act was originally passed by the coalition government in 1948 at which time we paid premiums. Soon after the Social Credit government came in to office, they increased the sales tax from three per cent to five per cent to cover the colossal cost of the service and also in order to catch delinquents and those who made a practice of not paying.

The scheme is excellent for those who can be hospitalized when they require it but we all know of many cases where hospitalization is needed but not available and this is not just—

Recently, my elderly father was seized with a cerebral hemorrhage and rushed by ambulance to the Vancouver General Hospital emergency ward. He recovered consciousness, but required careful nursing care. Our M.D. who is well-known and highly thought of at both V.G.H. and St. Paul's could not secure a bed, so the only choice was to move him to a ward in a private hospital at $8.50 a day, plus medicine and ambulance charges—$22 for the one day.

At one time the government paid for people in private hospitals who could not be accommodated elsewhere. This practice was discontinued about two years ago. I consider they should still pay for a minimum of a week.

I would favor changing the act and withdrawing so much free service, other than free ward care and the $1 per day charge, in order that something could be paid for acute cases that now, as in my father's case, have to be hospitalized in a private hospital.

Keep It Up

Mr. G. Wells wants to know "Why keep up the good work." This is in regard to the Victoria Day parade.

Well I am sure I made it plain in my first letter why we should keep up the good work. There are hundreds of shut-ins, cripples and children here who really do appreciate these things. I am sorry Mr. Wells didn't. With his attitude I am afraid he would not have the capacity to appreciate anything constructive. He only seems to want to knock Victoria.

I am sure we all enjoyed the visiting contributions to our parade and the people in the section where I watched the parade from certainly did give them a hand and many loud cheers.

Mr. Wells wants to know where our mayor was during the parade. Well, unless I am very badly mistaken he was right where he should have been—on the reviewing stand on Pandora avenue.

I hope Mr. Wells can manage to get away from Victoria before anything happens to cut it off from the rest of the Island. It would be too bad if he had to be cooped in with all these Victorians who are so terribly Anglicized.

Yes, I repeat, do by all means keep up the good work. Most folk do enjoy and appreciate these parades and celebrations.

L. M. STROUD,

Why Make It Glow?

The public should be warned against the "power of suggestion" in newspapers.

A four-man University of British Columbia team (not named), publish that a "cured" drug addict, when he becomes discouraged, "knows that in heroin he found emotional values completely superior to any that he had known before or since" and "easily becomes discouraged with the golden glow of his heroin-using days still in his memory."

Delights obtainable through drug-addiction, with nothing said about its awful consequences, is apparently the policy of this type of subversive propaganda.

The Vancouver police chief who lately said (in effect), that preaching against drug-addiction in schools could lead to some students taking to it out of curiosity, spoke the truth, considering the type of propaganda they would likely be inoculated with, and the fact that all students are not strong-minded.

In Mrs. Gaskell's book "Life of Charlotte Bronte" containing also about two hundred of Charlotte's private letters, Charlotte describes how her brother made the Bronte home life a hell, and how he killed himself in three years by drug addiction, and describes how drug addiction "stuns the conscience."

To Eradicate the Touchiness

Canadian pattern, is discernible all round us.

The Western culture which we in Canada share with Europe and the U.S. is founded on the culture that the Romans imported from the Greeks, who borrowed from the Egyptians, who got theirs from the Egyptians and the Babylonians.

Culture has always been readily exportable and importable without anyone getting defensive about it, until now. In the international languages of music, painting and sculpture nationality never counted for less than it does today.

Each artist takes what he needs from wherever he can find it; he recognizes no artificial barriers of race or nation.

British Columbia is in the unique position of having produced fine painters in spite of herself. Shadbolt, Binning, Smith and Korner of Vancouver and Zach and Siebner of Victoria all came here either as infants, youths or young men, from elsewhere. They, and others like them, are forming our culture in the plastic arts, whether we like it or not, for, after all, a culture in one respect is only the sum of all the works of art produced in a particular place at a particular time.

Right Climate

What we can do—and must do—is to provide the right climate of encouragement, interest and support for the artists which we have miraculously, and undeservedly, acquired. When someone tells me that B.C. has no artists I know I shall search in vain for his name on the list of members of the Art Gallery. This, surely, is easily remedied.

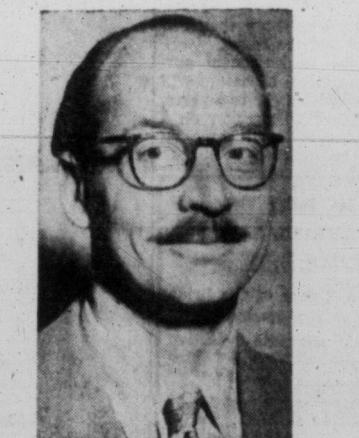

In the fall a show of all that is best in B.C. painting, sculpture, pottery, weaving and allied crafts, opens in the Gallery. Let's all be interested to see how real is the concern of Victorians for the cultural state of our poor benighted province.

If they come to the show they may give them enough confidence in their own artists to eradicate both the touchiness and the pessimism to which they are at present subject. Confidence can only come from knowledge.

We should all be secure in the knowledge that we have the best artists in Canada; we should endeavour to contribute to a climate that should foster and encourage their growth.

professor of Fine Arts at UBC, represented Canada at the Biennial Exhibition in Venice; This year it is the turn of Jack Shadbolt of Victoria to do likewise. A showing at the "Biennale" is the Victoria Cross, the Cordon Bleu, the Olympic Gold Medal, the — dare I say it? — Grey Cup of world painting.

In the last Canadian Biennial Exhibition the premier award went to Gordon

EMERY

Smith of West Vancouver, an instructor at Vancouver School of Art. Out of the dozen best paintings in the show more than half came from B.C., a fact which Eastern critics were chagrined to note.

At a national show in Winnipeg last year B. C. Binning and John Korner of Vancouver shared the second prize. Last year, too, Herbert Siebner of Victoria won the National Graphic award.

So much for our pictorial yuccas blooming in this arid desert, which Mr. Hutchison is kind enough to water with his tears.

As for this touchy question of importing culture, I must confess that I see no harm in the practice. Canada has imported her loggers, her farmers, her insurance salesmen, her football players, her television programs—are we not all imports originally? And yet the impress of the Canadian life-style, a distinctively

On the Prince's return, Thelma Furness gave a large afternoon reception at which he was present. Ernest and I were invited. We greeted Thelma and then moved on to one of the smaller drawing rooms.

After a while Thelma came in with the Prince. All of us rose at his entrance. As they moved through the room, he greeted people he knew. As he passed close by his glance happened to fall on me. He then nudged Thelma, who was standing beside him, and seemed to be asking her in a whisper: "Haven't I met that woman before?"

Presently he came over to where Ernest and I were standing to say, "How nice to see you again. I remember our meeting at Melton." I thought he looked finely drawn. He made a remark or two about his trip before moving away. It was a mark of attention that was flattering to us both.

PRESENTED.
In June of that year I was presented at Court.

I was reluctant because I would have to buy special clothes for the occasion, and I didn't feel justified in such an extravagance. But all my friends told me that if I did not go I would regret it later. Connie (Mrs. Benny Thaw) kindly lent me the dress she had worn at her own presentation.

tion, and Thelma provided the indispensable train, feathers, and fan.

The presentation was a magnificent set piece of pageantry. What impressed me most, to the point of awe, was the grandeur that invested the King and Queen, sitting side by side on identical golden thrones, the King in full-dress uniform, the Queen in a beaded evening dress—and the magnificent crown jewels, each with the star and blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter. Ranged behind the two thrones were the Prince of Wales, one of his brothers—and their venerable great uncle, the Duke of Connaught, also in full-dress uniform.

As our names were called each swept to the floor in a deep curtsy first to the Sovereign and then to the Queen and then withdrew sedately from the presence. Once out of sight, everyone made a mad dash through the adjoining state apartments in order to obtain a vantage point from which to watch the Royal Family as they withdrew in procession at the end of the Court.

I was standing with Ernest in the front row as the King and Queen walked slowly by followed by the members of their family. As the Prince of Wales walked past, I overheard him mutter to his venerable uncle, the Duke of Connaught: "Uncle Arthur, something ought to be done about the lights. They make the women all look ghastly."

GONE OWN WAYS

Thelma had invited Ernest and me to drop in at her house afterwards and we did. Perhaps a dozen people were there, including Thelma's husband, Viscount Furness, whom I met for the first time. He was the grandson of the founder of the large shipping line that bore his name, a good deal older than Thelma, short with a pointed nose and sandy hair. It was well known among their friends that he and Thelma had gone their own ways.

Presently the Prince arrived, accompanied by Gee Trotter. Over a glass of champagne, which he barely touched, he spoke admiringly of my gown. "But, sir," I responded with a straight face, "I understood that you thought we all looked ghastly."

He was startled. Then he smiled. "I had no idea my voice carried so far."

After a brief stay the Prince left with General Trotter, saying that he was on his way to the country and was already late. After what we judged to be a safe interval Ernest and I took our leave. To our surprise the Prince and Gee were standing by their car, engaged in conversation. Catching sight of us the Prince hastened forward to ask whether he could not give us a lift. I said: "Thank you, sir, very much."

Ernest and I entered the Prince's car. Chatting easily, and obviously in high spirits, the Prince mentioned that he and Gee were on their way to Fort Belvedere, in Windsor Great Park.

He had acquired it the year before and had become absorbed in the pleasure of fixing it over.

The place, the Prince explained, had fallen into ruins; and, as he talked about his plans for restoring it, clearing away the growth and decay of years, replanting the trees and creating a garden to his liking, a sensitive side of his nature came into view, revealing a perceptive and imaginative spirit not ordinarily associated with the hard-driving night-clubbing Prince of May-fair gossip.

"All the time I was in South America," he said laughingly, "I kept thinking how much work remains to be done at the Fort." I was utterly absorbed and all too soon the car arrived at Bryanston Court.

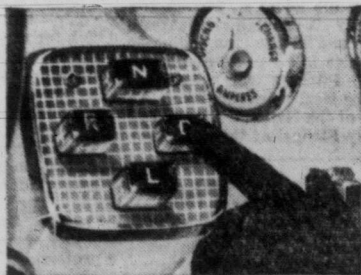

As the Prince helped me out of the car, I asked whether he and General Trotter might not like to come up for a moment

Tie Just Result, Or So Said Fans

Everton, Aberdeen Clubs Draw;
Scots Meet B.C. All-Star Team

By BILL WALKER
Everton 3, Aberdeen 3

EMPIRE STADIUM, Vancouver — Another result would hardly have befitted this occasion better, although Everton should be the first to deny it.

This was the condensed opinion of 18,382 British Columbia football fans here Saturday night as British soccer made its first all-professional appearance in the province.

That result, in the international meeting between Everton of the English League first division and Aberdeen, the famed Red Devils of Scotland, on a rain-drenched pitch, was a 3-3 tie.

The fans loved it, and will get more of the same tonight when Aberdeen meets a picked B.C. all-star side at Callister Park at 8.

But to the classic, first of its kind in Canada's west. It was a surprisingly alert Everton club which took command early and during the opening minutes it seemed the Tories would not be contained. And in just three minutes, Everton confounding the Dons not end with a crisp, short passing pattern attack, Everton struck. It was a picture play with the right side of the Everton forward line predominating as it was to do all evening. Centre-forward Jimmy Harris put outside right Brian Harris partly free and the elusive and always dangerous Brian fed a perfect pass through to inside Don Donovan who hit a terrific shot into the far corner.

Brian Saddened Scottish Hearts

Scottish hearts were understandably bleeding when Brian Harris made a brilliant solo move down the right side, eluded two defenders with his artistry and, breaking into the clear, fired a blistering shot off the top bar into the corner for Everton's second goal at 15 minutes.

But the Dons were soon to break out of the prison in which they found themselves. And given his one good chance of the half, outside right Graham Leggat spun around left back Jimmy Tansey and hit a left foot shot that blazed into the hem of the 24-minute mark. Still, it was Everton in control—but only to the intermission. Then the Dons suddenly found themselves, for within 15 minutes they were leading 3-2 on two brilliant goals by outside left Jack Hather, both from acute and seemingly impossible angles.

Then It Was Harris Again

Hather's first was a drive to the short side which caught goalie Jimmy O'Neill leaning the wrong way, the ball going off the keeper, then off the up right and into the net. Hather's second was the result of Aberdeen's best movement of the match—Buckley to Leggat to Hather, who picked a minute opening from near the line to thread the ball between O'Neill and the post.

Then Harris (Brian) entered the picture again. Held much better in the second half than in the first by Caldwell, nevertheless he got free long enough to set up Everton's third goal. He saved the ball on the line and crossed neatly to outside left Dave Eglinton who headed past Fred Martin for the equalizer. Minutes later Donovan intercepted an errant Aberdeen pass and went in alone on Martin to find Jack Hather, both from acute and seemingly impossible angles. The tie score will stand as the match result, but to most it was Everton's game. They were the more artistic, and less strange to one another.

Student Bombers Blast Gorge Crew

Chinese Students 9, Gorge Hotel 4

Chinese Students handed Gorge Hotel its second defeat of the Victoria Senior A Men's Softball League season Sunday, 9-4, at Central Park.

Students and the Hotelmen are the only teams remaining in the league following the withdrawal of Arrows last week because of a dispute over an umpire.

Students opened up early on Gorge's Marc Cunningham, scoring three runs in the first inning. They came back with four more in the fourth to salt the decision away.

Gorge's big frame was the seventh, when they chalked up three runs.

Bud Ross took the win for Students, although he gave up 14 hits. Cunningham, who was relieved by Barry Jackson, back up from senior B ranks, in the fifth, was the loser.

BIG BAT

Catcher Jimmy John led the winners' 11-hit attack on the two Gorge choppers. John picked up a home run, double and two singles in five trips to the plate. George Adams followed with two singles in four trips, plus two walks, while Worrall picked up two singles in three trips.

Next game will be Tuesday, when Gorge Hotel meets a senior B team, while Thursday Chinese Students and the Hotelmen will play a league game at Central Park.

On Sunday, Students will play a doubleheader against South Hill Athletics of Vancouver.

Solarium Corner

Fishermen on Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association Solarium Derby day July 22 will have three places to head for with their catches.

As in other years, these are Anchorage Boathouse at Brentwood, Hall's at Goldstream, and Holder's at Deep Cove.

But wherever the angler heads in an attempt to win a prize, he must have a ticket for the derby. At the cost of one buck each, all proceeds to the derby, co-sponsored by the Times, will go to the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Chairman George Douglas has a perspiring committee working for him on the ticket angle. One of these is Murph Howden, who is on the committee for the first time and "just wanted to help out."

Murph, married with four boys, fishes himself whenever he gets a chance, which isn't often. He can be contacted re tickets at 7-1397.

City Snipers Sweep Trap, Skeet Trophies

Henry Pottinger and Ted Bailey of Victoria were the top shotsmiths over the weekend at Victoria Gun Club's Albert Head grounds in the combined Vancouver Island skeet championships and Victoria city trap championships.

Pottinger took the Wilson & Lenfesty trophy Sunday in the trap events, while Bailey retained his Island title Saturday in the skeet competition.

Sunday, Pottinger took the all-around title after winning the "C" class of the 16-targets event. Jack Roach took the "A" class, while Herby Handyside took the "B" and Gordon Lamont, the "D."

In the 50-target doubles, John Olson was the winner, with Jack Roach as runner-up. Bill Hawkins took the 50-target handicap event.

Pottinger, with a total of 172, was the high over-all champion for the Island in trap.

In the skeet shooting Saturday, Bailey braved the sudden weather conditions to win the 100-bird, all-bore open and 50-bird, 20-gauge events.

Class "B" honors in the all-bore went to Dr. Roger Ross of Victoria, while Wallace McMillan won the "C" event and club secretary Bob Chambers the "D."

Dr. G. Robertson of Vancouver and Fay Lim of Victoria took the two-man team title, while the five-man team shoot went to captain Handyside's squad of Chambers, Dr. Robertson and D. Michaelson.

Jack, Fay Set 'Golf Day' Paces

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—U.S. open golf champion Jack Fleck carded an 18-hole total of 69 at the Oak Hill Country Club Saturday to set up a target for golfers in the United States and Canada participating in the fifth annual National Golf Day.

Fay Crocker, U.S. women's open champion, fired 80 to set the mark for the women. An estimated 200,000 golfers paid a $1 fee to enter competition against the champions. Winners, using their handicaps, will receive medals from the Professional Golfers' Association.

The balloting for American League players in the early going was running true to form with seven of the eight early leaders the ones who were voted on to last year's team. The other leaders behind Mantle were catcher Yogi Berra of the Yankees, 3,120; shortstop Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers, 2,519; left fielder Ted Williams of the Red Sox, 1,745; right fielder Al Kaline of the Tigers, 1,669; second baseman Nellie Fox of the White Sox, 1,646; first baseman Mickey Vernon of the Red Sox, 1,318; and third baseman Ray Boone of the Tigers, 921.

All but Boone were voted on to last year's team by the fans.

Americans Lose Curtis Cup By Margin of 'Mike' Cough

SANDWICH, Eng. (BUP)—America's beaten Curtis Cup golfers were silent today over the loudspeaker incident that may have cost them their defeat to Great Britain's women amateur stars—only their second loss in the 26-year history of the competition.

The Britons won the matches Saturday by a hairline 5-4 margin by winning four of the six singles matches after America took the foursomes competition on Friday, 2-1.

With America ahead in the match count at 4-3, Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., and Mrs. Frances Smith of England tied off in the final hole of their 36-hole singles competition.

As Miss Riley addressed the ball for her approach shot to the green, the loudspeaker, which was being tested, gave out with a startling cough. Miss Riley stopped, and then re-addressed the ball. When she shot she went 25 feet past the pin on the 256-yard hole. Mrs. Smith was on the green in two and two-putted for a par four. Miss Riley took a five to lose the match.

None of the Americans would comment on the situation—whereby they lost the cup for the first time since 1952 in the biennial series.

Prior to Miss Riley's defeat, the Americans had won two of the first four match play affairs and because of the advantage gained in the doubles on Friday still were in the lead.

Youthful Norm Boden New Amateur Champ

Wins Title In Playoff With Fleming

Norm Boden, 20-year-old Gorge Vale Golf Club member, scored a par four on the third extra hole Sunday at Uplands Golf Club to win the city amateur golf championship by one stroke from Bob Fleming.

Boden, winning his first major tournament, came from four strokes behind at the start of Sunday's 36-hole medal test to tie Fleming after the close of the 72 holes at 291.

Fleming started the final 36 holes with a 142 total, compared with Boden's 147. Boden picked up two strokes on the morning round, firing a 73 to Fleming's 75, then shoved a 32 at the former city champion on the back nine of the afternoon round for a sizzling 71 and the tie. Fleming had to settle for a 74.

On that final nine, Boden birdied the 11th, 13th and 14th holes and bogied the 12th for his three-under-par figures:

EXTRA HOLES

Moving into the sudden-death playoff, both golfers bogied the par four first hole and parred the par-four second. Boden then rapped in a par on the par-four third while Fleming could do no better than a bogie five.

Third was Bill McCall of Colwood with a 292, comprised of rounds of 74 and 73 to go with his first round 145.

Defending champion and Times Open titlist Laurie Kerr, wound up with 73-75, for 294, while John Merriman of Gorge Vale finished fifth with 74-73—296.

Dr. George Bigelow, who was runner-up with 144 after the first 36 holes faded to 298 with a 75-79.

Low net for the tournament was won by Laurie Greenwood, with a net 276, while J. Parker was runner-up.

Jr. Shamrocks Blast Jets In Two Games

Victoria's Junior Shamrocks, gleefully reversing the role played by their senior counterparts, blasted Nanaimo Jets, 21-1 and 12-1, over the weekend to move into second place in the Senior B Lacrosse League.

The Junior Rocks ran up the biggest score Sunday at Stevenson Park, as Keith Lawrence led the way with four goals.

Rocks led 9-0 at the end of the first quarter and 9-1 at half-time.

Saturday, Art Pike, Stu Smith and Bob McKee led the 12-goal attack with two each.

Scorers: Junior Shamrocks—Keith Lawrence 4, Parker 2, Stu Smith 2, Bob McKee 2, Alf Pike 1, Ralph Lyndon 1, Stu Smith 2, Russ Rosskamp 1, Len Clark 2, Nanaimo—B. Andow 1.

Quakers Dealt Tough Blow as Kenny Quits

SASKATOON (CP)—Prospects for professional hockey in Saskatoon for the 1956-57 season received another jolt Sunday when Kenny MacKenzie of New Westminster informed manager Norman Couch of the Quakers he would not be coming here.

MacKenzie said he was retiring from the game for one year. He didn't think he could line up a club for the 1956-57 season.

Couch said there was still a hope the Quakers would operate. He said there were two or three businessmen interested in taking over the team providing they could get more partners.

A decision has to be given the Western Hockey League by next Friday. The WHL set that deadline for Saskatoon to say whether or not it would operate a professional team next season.

MICKEY MCCONNELL
Major League Scout

After seeing him smok fast balls past powerful batters as Hank Bauer and Bob Cerv in the 1955 World Series, observers were convinced that Johnny Podres can fire the ball. But it was his change of pace (the professional term for a slow ball) which made his fast ball an effective pitch.

Mickey Mantle proved to Podres that his fast ball could be hit when he blasted one into the stands the first time he faced the Brooklyn left-hander. Then Johnny began to mix up his pitches—throwing fast balls and changes, fast and slow curves at the right time to keep the Yankee sluggers off balance and uncertain about what was coming next—and this mixture produced a world championship for his Dodgers.

When you have learned to control your fast ball, work on a change of pace. Don't use it against weak hitters because it may be the only ball they can hit, but do use it against batters who are pulling your fast ball regularly. It may throw them off in their timing. But it will work only if the batter thinks you are going to throw a fast ball. By choking the ball and loosening your grip on it, you can throw it with the same back spin and just as hard as your fast ball, but it will not travel as fast. It takes a lot of practice to perfect this pitch, but Podres showed its value against the Yankees.

Rainiers Near Lead; Mounties Win Twice

The Seattle Rainiers, with Joe Taylor waving a deadly bat, hammered on the door to first place in the Pacific Coast League race today and apparently had a clinch series coming up with fading San Francisco.

Manager Luke Sewell's Suds moved to within half a game of first place Los Angeles last night as they swept a twin bill from Sacramento, 3-1 and 9-3, after the Angels had split a wild doubleheader with San Diego. The Angels won the first, 11-8, in 10 innings, and San Diego took the walkout, 8-3.

Taylor drove in five runs for Seattle in the nightcap, two with a homer, two with a double and a fifth with another double. His hitting helped Howie Judson win his fourth game of the campaign.

In other games, Hollywood won its eighth straight, beating Portland 6-5 in a single contest while Vancouver swept two from San Francisco, 7-6 and 6-5.

The first Angel-Padre contest turned into a slugfest with 30 hits going into the books while a total of nine hurlers saw action.

Los Angeles sewed it up with a three-run blast in the 10th frame. Bob Speake singled in one run and a two-run double by ageless Piper Davis accounted for the other pair.

The Chicago Cubs have discarded their "patsy label" and rank today as the new "surprise team" of the major leagues.

Off to a dismal start, Stan Hack's fangless Bruins seemed doomed to the National League cellar as recently as Memorial Day. But now they're traveling at a .727 pace that's the best in either league for the month of June and they've been doing it by beating the cream of the circuit's pitching talent.

The Cubs made it eight victories in their last 11 games when they beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 2-1 and 5-2 Sunday.

It was their second consecutive sweep of a doubleheader and recalled Hack's pre-season promise that the Cubs "would give everybody trouble before the season is over."

Eddie Miksis, who's been hitting close to .400 in the surge, broke up the 11-inning opener with a single that scored Pete Whisenant from third base.

Sam Jones, an early disappointment after his first rookie campaign of 1955, came through with his best game of the season in the nightcap when he struck out nine batters and yielded only six hits in eight and one-third innings.

REDS HOLD LEAD
The Cincinnati Redlegs bowed to the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8-6, but retained first place when the other contenders either split doubleheaders or lost. They lead the St. Louis Cardinals by three percentage points.

Rookie Charley Neal's two-run homer provided the Dodgers with their margin of victory but it was Ed Roebuck's seven-innings of one run relief pitching that held the Redlegs at bay.

The Pittsburgh Pirates held first place briefly when they walloped the St. Louis Cardinals, 11-3, but Herman Wehrmeister came back to pitch the Redbirds to a 3-0 triumph in the nightcap.

The New York Giants rallied for four runs in the seventh inning to beat the Milwaukee Braves, 5-3. Johnny Antonelli received credit for his fifth victory in relief while Warren Spahn suffered his fifth straight loss since May 17 when his record was 3-1.

In the American League, the New York Yankees restored their lead to 3½ games when they downed the Cleveland Indians, 6-0. Johnny Kucks limited the Indians to nine hits for his seventh win while Joe Collins blasted a three-run homer off Bob Lemon for the big New York blow of the contest.

Billy Pierce won his eighth game to tie Jim Wilson and Tom Brewer for the individual lead and give the Chicago White Sox a 3-2 win over the Boston Red Sox.

BASEBALL Gene Wins Fight With Jitters

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—Stone-faced Gene Little of Singing Hills, Calif., stood off a mild attack of putting jitters Sunday to gain an easy victory in the $15,000 Round Robin golf tournament.

Little, far in front after the first four rounds, slipped a bit Sunday and finished with 36-34-70, his worst round of the tournament but still under par. His 90-hole total of 344, one of the best scores ever made in 15 years of this tournament, was good for a plus 55-point score in the unique round-robin scoring system.

Runner-up, Ted Kroil, after picking up a few points in the early stages, finished with 34-37-71.

Kroil had a plus 31-point total, not even a threat to Little although he was only two strokes behind in the medal scoring. Little shot 69-69-68-68-344 over Wykagly's par 37-35-72 course.

Dow Finsterwald of Bedford Heights, Ohio, took third with a plus 27 count on a medal score of 351.

MINOR LEAGUE ROUND-UP

Weather Coolish, Dodgers Warmish

Yarrows Dodgers warmed-up their batting arms at chilly Bullen Park Sunday as they swamped Merchants, 22-4, in an Esquimalt-Vic West game halted after four innings.

Dodgers did all their scoring in two innings, with 12 runs in the first and 10 more in the second.

John Yankoski, with a double and two singles in four trips, and Ricky Barnswell with a triple and a single led the winners' 13-hit attack.

In another league game at Bullen Park, Pirates scored two runs in the fifth inning to edge Lions, 7-5. Wayne Mowat with a double and single in three trips for Pirates led the hitters.

JETS CLIP EAGLES

In North Kiwanis League action at Macdonald Park Sunday, ANAF scored seven runs in the fourth inning and went on to bounce Eagles 10-2, in the first game of a double header, while Pages blanked Hagels 4-0, in the second game.

Leibel, with a double and single in four trips for ANAF, was the day's best batter.

And at Little League Park in an American Little League game, Oak Bay Kiwanis scored a run in the bottom of the seventh inning to nip Kinsmen, 5-4. Dave Pollock had three hits for the winners.

Beverley Fleitz European Champ

LUGANO, Switzerland (BUP)—Mrs. Beverly Fleitz changed the script a little today for the finals of a European women's tennis tournament—she was the American girl who won it instead of Althea Gibson.

Mrs. Fleitz of Long Beach, Calif., scored a 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, triumph yesterday over Mrs. Jennifer Hoad of Australia to win the women's international tennis championship of Switzerland. It was one of the few tournaments by-passed by New York's Miss Gibson.

The men's championship went to hard-working Neale Fraser of Australia who had to battle through a rainy five-set marathon to top Ulf Schmidt of Sweden, 8-6, 6-2, 2-6, 3-6, 6-3.

Andy sends a complete, 15 volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Janet D'Agostino, aged 13, Bronx, N.Y., for her question:

Who Was Aristotle?

Scholars rate him among the most intelligent men of history. And that great intelligence sprang from a quality we all have—curiosity. Aristotle was interested in just about everything. He taught his pupils to exercise their curiosity and enjoy as many interests as possible. There is beauty to enjoy, he believed, in every form of life.

Aristotle was first and last a teacher. His father was court physician to the father of Philip II of ancient Macedonia. As a young man he went to Athens. For 20 years he studied there with Plato. When that old philosopher died, Aristotle retired with friends to continue his thinking on the slopes of his toric Mount Ida. But not for long.

Philip of Macedonia, entrusted Aristotle with a right royal pupil. For seven years, he was the tutor of the young Alexander the Great. Always interested in government, the great teacher hated the tyranny of Persia. This may well have enflamed his pupil to later conquer the vast Persian empire.

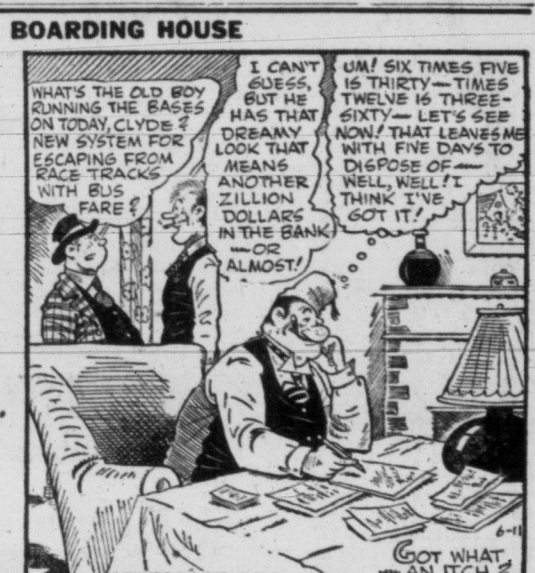

Aristotle's work in Macedonia was done when Alexander was king moved to conquer the known world. The royal pupil did not forget his teacher. He gave money for Aristotle to found his own school in Athens.

Like all great teachers, Aristotle loved to learn along with his pupils. Together they observed and classified all manner of things. The school museum was full of fascinating specimens. Teacher and pupils would puzzle and chat over this and that as they walked under the trees. Their school was called The Peripatetic, or walking. School, from this strolling up and down.

Aristotle wrote on countless subjects—botany, rocks, stars, ethics, government and even psychology. But there was far more than facts and observations in his teaching. Underlying everything is a strong yet gentle love of goodness and beauty. This is most marked in his ideas on ethics and government.

He believed that no ruler should be above the law of the land. He believed that people had a right to elect their rulers and call them to account. And, in a machineless slave-state, he believed in the emancipation of slaves.

The great teacher left Athens when Alexander died. He returned to the Aegean Isle of Euboea, his mother's home. He died there at the age of 62 in the year 322 B.C. But much of what he said and believed can never die. A great deal of it tallies with what your own best conscience has to say.

First Convention Set for Centennial

Premier Bennett will open the official headquarters of the B.C. Centennial Committee in the Weiler Building on Broughton Street today.

Larry McCance, executive secretary of the committee, has already moved into the new premises. He has been appointed on a two-year basis to co-ordinate the province-wide celebrations marking British Columbia's centennial in 1958.

"We are already getting lots of correspondence concerning centennial celebrations," Mr. McCance said.

Centennial officials were particularly pleased at word from Prince George over the weekend that the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce will host the B.C. convention here in 1958.

"The Jaycees have shown enterprise," said Lance Whitaker, community activities chairman. "One way to make 1958 a big year for Victoria is to secure all the conventions possible. We hope that the province will be the scene of many national conventions."

Many B.C. centres and organizations are laying the groundwork for centennial celebrations. Comox, Courtenay and Cumberland are planning a joint observance. Mayor Geoffrey Browning of Courtenay, Mayor William Henderson of Cumberland and village commission chairman A. N. B. Mofminger of Comox will recommend to their respective councils that they combine for the celebration.

RADIO SUPPORT

B.C.'s private radio stations have pledged full support to the province's celebration.

B.C. Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, at its annual summer convention in Penikese, decided to send letters to the centennial committee and the government assuring 100 per cent co-operation in the festivities.

Suggestions for observance of the centennial in Nanaimo were passed on to the city's Junior Chamber of Commerce this week by George Molecey, member of the centennial sub-committee on community activities.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY

Mr. Molecey, who was instrumental in staging the city's Princess Royal centennial in 1954, said Jaycees have the "opportunity of a lifetime" to participate.

Nanaimo is in a unique position to benefit, he said, since attention focused on the celebration should result in the establishment of new industries in the province. The "hub city" cannot help but gain, he said.

He suggested the city should make plans quickly for a permanent centennial memorial, such as a swimming pool, hospital room or library.

Campbell River plans a swimming pool, he said. The sum of $1,250,000 soon will be available from the provincial government to assist local projects, he said. Of the

AA—Oscar Class
BB—Worthwhile
CC—To Put in Time

(BB PLUS) "JUBAL" (Dominion): More in sorrow than in anger this column feels duty-bound to editorially rap the capable knuckles of one of its favorite sons.

Fast-rising Rod Steiger, who played so notably as a "heavy" in "The Court Martial of Billy Mitchell" and "The Harder They Fall" is obviously commencing to believe his own press notices and is determined to be the heaviest "heavy" since Man Mountain Dean. In Columbia's "Jubal" he over-plays his part as badly as a Little Theatre amateur. Or maybe it's just that he's getting yapp-happy.

But for Steiger, "Jubal" easily could have been rated in a higher category. For it has a strong plot and is graced by such competent actors as Glenn Ford ("The Blackboard Jungle") and Oscar-winning Ernest Borgnine ("Marty").

THE PLOT, IN BRIEF: Rancher Borgnine befriends out-of-work cowhand Ford. In time he promotes him to be foreman of his spread which infuriates jealous cowboy Steiger. The feud between the two is heightened further when Borgnine's scheming wife Valerie French makes cow's eyes at Ford. Steiger thinks the mooing should be in his direction.

Later, Steiger plays mad dog in the manger and plants the seed of doubt in Borgnine's mind. Although Ford protests his innocence of taking French leave with his wife, crazy-jealous Borgnine levels at him with his rifle and Ford slays him in self-defence. Immediately the ranchers of the valley, who revered the kind Borgnine, are up in arms, aroused by Steiger. Ford, wounded, seeks asylum amidst a religious sect and is nursed back to health by Felicia Farr.

In conclusion, if Steiger had played it more sullenly, letting action take the place of his interminable words "Jubal" would have emerged more jubilant.

SIGHTSEEING ASHORE

Ship Owners Host Junkets for Crew

CHEMAINUS—A group of Dutch seamen set out from this port one day last week on a "See Vancouver Island First" outing sponsored by their employer.

Each year about this time, the Nedlloyd Line of Rotterdam provides seamen on its ships with a day of sightseeing ashore in whatever port they happen to be in at the time.

Last week one of the ships, Se Kertosono, arrived in Che-mainus to take on lumber. Ding-wall, Cotts and Co., Vancouver, Canadian agents for the line, recommended that on the occasion of their annual excursion crew members visit the Qualicum Beach area, and a Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus was hired to pick up the sightseers.

Of the 60-man crew, 30 were eligible for the trip. Capt. H. A. Faber remained aboard while the party ashore was headed by first mate J. H. P. van Hoogen and chief engineer H. J. van der Hum.

C. W. Gordon, local agent for the line, and Mrs. Gordon acted as guides.

The group met at the Qualicum Beach Hotel for lunch. It turned out that the Dutch chef at the hotel had served on various ships with some of the seamen. The chef's wife accompanied the group on their trip and was able to answer many questions about various beauty spots.

The party visited Little Qualicum Falls, Cathedral Grove and other points of interest in the area.

BREAD PRICE UP 1 CENT; FIRST RISE SINCE 1953

Canadian Bakeries Ltd. today increased the retail price of bread from 15 to 16 cents in the first price boost since April, 1953.

"We have been putting this off for months, but finally had to do it," said Ed Hallier, manager of the Victoria plant. "It has been forced by the rising cost of materials, production, distribution and labor."

The company's Vancouver operation also increased the price today by one cent.

Other Victoria bakeries continue to sell bread for from 12 to 15 cents retail, but other boosts are expected.

BETWEEN TIMES

By

MONTE ROBERTS

If a dog can write a column, I suppose a cat can write a letter. So:

"Dear Judy Boots Streak,

"After perusing your column regarding licensing felines it is an appropriate time to relate my harrowing experience re collars.

"Although I was only doing my duty, since the robins were eating all my neighbor's cherries, my mistress that I own decided to 'bell me.'

"I suffered great indignation as only a princess feline can, as I am of royal descent, namely a Blue Point Siamese. "While climbing my favorite tree one day I lost my balance and somehow got my collar caught on a branch. With my beautiful blue eyes protruding out of my head and having used up all but one of my nine lives I was rescued in the nick of time by my mistress.

"My collar with the pretty bell now gathers dust in the kitchen drawer but I have an agreement with my family for every robin I take a fancy to I kill three mice.

"Sincerely yours,

"HRH Princess Chi Chi Dillabough."

The dog J.B. has instructed me to say I am not surprised at the cat losing her balance in the tree, most cats tend to be unbalanced anyway.

But J.B. agrees that, if cats aren't smart enough to avoid hanging themselves to the nearest limb, perhaps some other solution will have to be evolved before cats gain equal rights with dogs, including the equal right to be licensed. J.B. thinks, possibly cats could be equipped with waistcoats. Then they could carry their licences in a little transparent plastic wallet in a vest pocket and display same when asked to by the authorities.

Or perhaps, J.B. thinks, cats would rather wear hats. Then they could put cards with their licence numbers in their hat bands, like the movie and TV reporters do with their press cards.

If cats don't like either of those solutions, J.B. says, it would be a simple matter to provide them with anklets suitably engraved with name and number.

J.B. doubts if even a cat could hang himself on an anklet.

And if they can band birds, J.B. says, why can't they band cats?

It is time cats and birds had more in common, J.B. says.

As for me, I am strictly neutral, but most of the constituents can guess whose side I am neutral on.

City, Esquimalt Disagree on CD

Evacuate or Stay Put Is Contentious Point

Decision to evacuate Greater Victoria in event of warning of enemy air attack was reached by the district civil defence board today.

But Esquimalt delegates stuck to their contention that evacuation is "just humbug," and Reeve A. C. Wurtele said he could not recommend such action to the people of his municipality.

The board will invite here a team of CD experts from Ottawa to guide final planning and preparation of a pamphlet and map to direct all householders should the need to flee their homes arise.

The decision was reached by a 12-man board representing Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Langford, Colwood and View Royal.

Today's meeting followed presentation last week of a 12-page pamphlet on evacuation methods for this area by CD co-ordinator Roger Peachey.

Members of the board studied the plan in the interim and prefaced their final decision with explanation that after many meetings, without meaning to scare the public and on the advice of Canada's top civil defence planners, a plan to evacuate was adopted. On the advice of these experts in the future, it is also subject to amendment.

Reeve Wurtele opened today's discussion, stating he was in full agreement with most of the proposals in the pamphlet.

But he quoted The Canadian Army Journal and a CD pamphlet both published last year, which indicated the tremendous value of shelters.

"It would be very dangerous to put thousands of people in the open when a bomb might be exploded," he stated.

He said he had great faith in the RCAF to put an enemy off target. He said also that the army and navy did not plan to evacuate. "I think if you ask them, they plan to get to shelters."

"I cannot recommend to the people of Esquimalt that we adopt any evacuation plan. I would suggest army and navy officials be invited here to comment," said the reeve.

BEST MATERIAL

View Royal representative, W. B. Cole said with respect to the pamphlet held by the reeve, "The printed word is often out of date by the time it reaches the reader's hands." He said CD headquarters is staffed with the "best material the country affords" and said the branch works hand in glove with the best military brains on the continent.

In their opinion the best defence now is dispersal.

He said he learned during a recent trip to Canada's CD headquarters that any air activity in the direction of logical attack would be noted.

He said the U.S. air force, the DEW line and other protective screens would combine to give Victoria six hours warning. The only delay might be cabinet consideration of whether the public should be warned.

"Reeve Wurtele is still fighting a new war with last war weapons—a common falling." "I object to the remark that I am not keeping myself up to date. I think I am," retorted the reeve.

50 YEARS

Ald. W. F. Pinfold (Victoria) said he understood that the area near a direct hit by a modern bomb would be uninhabitable for 50 years after. "What's the good of going to a shelter if you can't get out for 50 years?" Reeve Wurtele's sole support came from his councillor, Walter Holder, who quoted army officials last year as saying "stay put."

"There has been a great change in thinking since last year," said Mr. Cole.

Co-ordinator Peachey told the meeting that once the major decision of evacuation was reached, Ottawa was ready to send a planning team of experts to the city to assist in final preparation of public information.

"They will survey the whole area," he stated.

Reeve Wurtele called for an amendment to the main motion which would have delayed any decision until the opinion of the Ottawa experts had been heard. It was defeated, with only himself and Mr. Holder in favor. Their votes were the only ones opposing the evacuation plan.

GOOD DEED?

Scout Leader Or Mountie? He Found Out

Testimony of an RCMP constable mistaken for a Boy Scout leader convicted Peter S. Hartnell, 600 Douglas, on charges of failing to produce a driver's licence and violating a red traffic light.

He appeared in city police court today on information filed by RCMP Const. K. M. Laughland, of Victoria detachment, and was fined $10 on the first count, $5 for the second.

Const. Laughland told the court Hartnell said to him when he stopped him on Douglas street May 17:

"You have no jurisdiction in this city, so just shut up. If you don't believe me, ask your boss."

The constable said he had followed Hartnell about seven blocks, watched him go through a stop light and make a U-turn on Douglas street. He caught up with Hartnell after the latter parked his car, and demanded to see his driver's licence.

"I didn't recognize him as a police officer," Hartnell said. "I thought he was a Boy Scout leader because of his hat."

Wealthy City Man Gave U.S. Friend $169,661

A federal judge of Fort Worth, Texas, has ordered Mrs. Marie McCally Zips, wife of a real estate manager, to return $169,661.25 given to her by wealthy George Westinghouse Jr., 73, of Victoria, according to an Associated Press dispatch received today.

Judge Joseph Estes ruled that Mr. Westinghouse was mentally incompetent to look after the affairs of his business when he made the gift to Mrs. Zips in 1955.

Mr. Westinghouse, son of George Westinghouse, who invented air brakes and founded the large Westinghouse industry, is now at Hollywood Sanatorium, New Westminster.

The civil suit against the woman was instituted by the Royal Trust Company of Canada, acting in the capacity of a committee in lunacy for the patient. The sons and daughters requested the trust company to recover the gift money.

SECOND GIFT

The company has also another suit pending against Patricia Pierce, 42, of Denver, who allegedly received from Mr. Westinghouse a gift of $200,000 in money and securities.

Hugh L. Henderson, acting as solicitor for the estate, also claims that Mr. Westinghouse gave large amounts of cash and blue chip stocks to Grace Smith, a resident of England.

The administrators of the estate estimate that Mr. Westinghouse gave in all about $517,000 in gifts to strangers during the last few years.

Mr. Westinghouse, formerly a U.S. citizen, became a British subject in 1945. He has six children. They are Aubrey Harold Westinghouse of Victoria; George Thomas Westinghouse, Seattle; Agnes Sylvia Simpson, 4573 Blenkinsop Road; Violet Louise Laurie, 2625 Lansdowne Road; Richard Laurence Westinghouse, Italy; and Margaret Virginia Kunater, Austria.

Growing Industry In Concrete

The concrete products industry is a "war baby," essentially. It was during World War II when building materials were scarce that the industry got its big start. The story of how Gus Marker, former hockey great with the Toronto Maple Leafs, started in business serves to illustrate the point.

Gus intended to build bowling alleys in Kingston. He found he couldn't get the steel he required to erect a building, so he started making concrete blocks, intending to stop when he had enough to build his bowling alleys.

Block are made of cement, water and an aggregate, primarily. The aggregate may consist of sand and gravel, cinders, slag, haydite, or other material, depending on the density, color, weight, compressive strength and water absorption qualities of the block the operator wants to produce.

The products are mixed in carefully controlled proportions, fed into a mixer, and released into molds. Then they are vibrated to pack the materials down, and to prevent air spaces forming. They are pressed in the molds, and emerge from the machine on a steel or wooden pallet.

In most plants an operator stands by with an automatic lifting device that picks them up, pallet and all, and places them on a truck.

Then a lift truck picks up a rack at a time, and carries the block into a steam curing room. Steam at high temperatures is released into the room, and ensures a block that won't warp.

Girls in fire chief hats will storm Newcastle Motors Saturday, but their hoses will gush gas, not water.

The girls are sorority sisters of Xi Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, out to raise money for the Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children.

They will take over the gas station at 9 a.m. and continue until 9 p.m., filling gas tanks, checking oil and wiping windshields.

Proceeds from the gas and oil sales will be used for the operation of the summer and fall schools for retarded children.

It means that when the sale of beer for consumption on the premises ceases at 11:30 p.m., beer parlor customers will still be able to buy bottled beer until midnight and take it home," said Col. Donald McGugan, chairman of the Board of Liquor Commissioners.

Handy New Barbecues Are Portable and Disposable

By PENNY SAVER

The rage for summertime eating seems to be barbecue meals—and I can see why. There's so little fuss and fuss that any occasion, a party or a family dinner, can be made even better by efficient and fun-to-use barbecue equipment. For the picnic, or for use right in the living or dining room, you'll find that the portable, disposable barbecue that's on sale in town will save a lot of work, and will add an interesting touch to the occasion. In one package is the grill, charcoal and excellent starter. All you need is a match.

Weiners, chops, steaks or hamburgers can be grilled to perfection, without worry about keeping the heat constant, for the cone-shaped barbecue will stay hot for an hour. It's yours for just $1.25.

A clothes basket that won't snag or stain dainty clothes is the wish of every woman. It needn't be only a wish, now, for a well-known company has put out a lightweight, soft plastic clothes basket that will hold your whole load of washing, and there'll be nary a snag or catch. In aqua, red or yellow, it costs $4.95.

Here's something new, different and very smart for the modern home. Angled steak knives that cut naturally and easily and are constructed in one piece, so that handles won't come off. Instead of the blade and handle being in a straight line, they angle sharply at the division, so that cutting is done while the hand is in a natural position. Blades, hand ground, are hollow ground surgical steel that won't rust or stain, and are easy to sharpen. The substantial sized handles of tenite look like polished bone, but won't chip or crack. A set of six in a fitted wooden case costs $29.50.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to find any of the items mentioned in the columns.

At the reception a telephone call was received from the bride's sister, Mrs. R. J. Mann, Halifax.

Women Around World Work Toward Equal Rights to Improve Status

KINGSTON (CP).—Women for the national council's consideration today resolutions recommending that stores be open one night a week, that the death penalty be abolished and that the government set up in small cities rehabilitation centres for mentally defective adults.

Addressing the annual meeting, she said Egyptian women told the international council's executive meeting in Venice last April that although they have the vote the law discriminates against them. In business men claimed women worked by intuition only.

In Greece women have gained the vote for the first time. The Australian council obtained pensions for widows with children under six and were agitating for a later retirement age for women.

In Great Britain women were progressing slowly in an equal-pay-for-equal-work campaign. The council was building a home for retired women who had done outstanding work toward improving women's status.

Mrs. Turner Bone, whose five-year presidential term on the Canadian council ends next week, said the Greek delegation walked out when the Venice meeting refused to endorse their view on Cyprus.

The international council said it did not deal with political or religious problems between countries. Israel was accepted on the international council over objections from the Lebanese and Egyptian delegations.

The Ontario council will present

Chuvato Meets Johnny Arthur

TORONTO (BUP)—Stiff competition faced Toronto's George Chuvato today as he prepared to meet veteran Johnny Arthur in his professional boxing debut at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The 18-year-old pugilist is considered a 2-1 underdog against the South African champion who out-matches him in experience, height, weight and reach. Chuvato's one source of consolation lies in his "knockout hands."

Neither Chuvato nor Arthur have been knocked out. The Young Toronto heavyweight won the Jack Dempsey Tournament here recently by knocking out four opponents within 12 minutes.

The world's biggest single pool of oil is believed in the Sheikdom of Kuwait in the Persian Gulf.

THEY ESCORTED HIM OUT OF TOWN

Duncan Man Still Unhappy Over Fine He Paid in 1901

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash. (AP)—A former resident of Port Townsend, fined $7.50 by the city in 1901, has requested a review of his case, hoping to clear his record of the "heinous crime of riding his bicycle on the sidewalk."

E. H. Peterson—who now lives in Duncan, B.C., and refers to himself as a "respectable old stump rancher"—wrote a lengthy letter to Port Townsend's mayor describing the entire incident.

"About 55 years ago," wrote Peterson, "I was arrested by Officer Finn, one rainy evening, my bicycle was impounded, and I was charged with... riding on the sidewalk."

The next day, he claims, he was hailed before a judge and forced to pay $5 and $2.50 costs to redeem his bicycle.

There was, he protests, no charge laid against him, no witness to give evidence against him, no opportunity to acquire counsel and no trial by a jury of his peers.

"Altogether," says Peterson, "I think it was a very high-handed procedure, and one that reflected no credit to your fair city. I believe the time was exorbitant."

"I feel that in all justice to myself, and to the fair city of my birth, this case should be reviewed, and that it should be erased from the records and that I should have a full pardon, even if it is necessary to go to Governor Rogers or even President McKinley."

Peterson admits having had a police escort to the docks when leaving Port Townsend in 1905, but says that he refused a cash offer by the city's mayor for his promise "never to return."

Peterson worked as a telegrapher at Port Townsend in the late 90s and around the turn of the century. He took part in the battles of Ypres and the Somme in the First World War.

Port Townsend's Mayor, George Bangerter, says that the city council will consider restitution of the $7.50 fine.

Three Murders Shock Montreal

CALM BEFORE THE STORM

Marathon swimmer Ben Laughren was in calm water during morning part of strait attempt today, but at press time was "up to his ears" in trouble with choppy Race Rocks whirlpools. Trainer Ove Witt is in boat.

Big Ben Finds Race Rocks Rips Rough in Fine Show

By Radio-Telephone From Times Reporter Tony Dickason

At 2 p.m. today Victoria chef Ben Laughren was almost out of the tide rips and whirlpools off Race Rocks in his fourth attempt to swim the Juan de Fuca Strait from Victoria to Port Angeles.

His distance from his starting point off the Chinese Cemetery was approximately 12 miles.

He entered the water off Harling Point at 5.49 a.m. under lowering skies. He swam the 50 yards from the accompanying vessel Meota to the rocky shore, touched briefly, waved and struck out for Port Angeles.

At 8 a.m. he was swimming at a brisk 32 strokes per minute pace with his unorthodox style. A tide that had carried him eastward, but at 10 a.m. the tide started carrying him forward and toward Race Rocks.

At 11.30 Ben was swimming strongly just east of Pedder Bay. The tide that had carried him westward had slackened and Ben had to keep swimming briskly to follow navigator Stan Page's plan to round Race Rocks and catch the eastward tide south of Becher Bay.

Page is a new navigator for Ben.

Shortly after takeoff burl Ben shouted to the accompanying trio of vessels that he would be in Port Angeles "for tea and crumpets."

He was being fed orange juice and glucose every hour. At his noon feeding, he was puffing and blowing slightly and told trainer Ove Witt that "I feel very warm. I have all the feeling in my body."

Aboard the Meota with Page and Witt is Ben's wife.

Laughren has now been in the water the longest of his four swim attempts. His best previous time was five hours and 35 minutes, on his third attempt.

Before taking off today, the 270-pound ex-wrestler told the Times he intended to put every bit of his great big heart into this strait bid.

If he succeeds in making it to Port Angeles, he will be the first swimmer to swim the strait from Victoria to Port Angeles.

Only swimmer to conquer the strait so far is Bert Thomas, who swam from Port Angeles to Victoria last year.

This is the 43rd attempt on the strait, dating back to 1933, when three swimmers tried and failed.

SIMMONS DUE HERE TODAY

Ted Simmons of Toronto, who plans a Juan de Fuca Strait attempt in the June 15-17 period, was due to arrive in Victoria today.

He is accompanied by his coach, Steve Mellors. The party travelled to Vancouver by train, were to arrive here via Nanaimo.

It is not known if Fearnley Wheatcroft, another Mellors-coached swimmer, is also in the party.

Squealer Suspect Shot to Death

BOSTON (UP)—Police jailed two longshoremen today on suspicion of murder in the one-way ride slaying of an ex-convict believed to have turned informer on two Brink's holdup gang suspects.

The two waterfront toughs were picked up after the body of William F. Cameron, 49, was found in a kneeling position Sunday in a car at the navy's Fargo building parking lot. Two .38 calibre bullets had been fired through his right temple.

Police said Cameron may have been slain to prevent him from testifying in the trial of the 10 men under indictment for staging the nation's largest cash robbery Jan. 17, 1950.

Inquest Ordered

EDMONTON (CP)—H. J. Wilson, deputy attorney-general of Alberta, announced today an inquest will be held into the June 3 shooting deaths of eight persons on the farm of John E. Clark, Social Credit member of the provincial legislature. It was reported earlier there would be no inquest.

RAIL RATES GO UP STARTING JULY 1

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners said today it would grant an interim freight rate increase to the country's major railways July 1. Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways have asked for a general freight rate boost of 15 per cent. They also want an increase of 25 cents a ton on shipments of coal and coke.

Announcing the board's decision before railway counsel presented their arguments, Justice J. D. Kearney, board chairman, said the measure was to give the CNR and CPR "first aid" relief from mounting wage costs.

First PGE Train Running Today

But Railway Minister's Bets In Jeopardy Until It Arrives

VANCOUVER (CP)—A work train left Squamish at 11 a.m. today to make the 42-mile run to North Vancouver over the newly completed link of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. It was due in North Vancouver at 4.15 p.m., PGE officials said.

Unless slides prevent the trip from being completed, it will be the first train to make the journey over the last link of a railway joining North Vancouver with the rich interior of B.C. an official today said there had been no slides between Squamish and Horseshoe Bay in 24 hours.

LAST SPIKE

The last spike of the new link was driven at 4.15 p.m. Sunday to the accompaniment of cheering from railways minister, Ralph Chetwynd. Mr. Chetwynd had bet $300 in hats that the first train would run over the extension by today.

Einar Gunderson, PGE general manager, looked on with Mr. Chetwynd during the ceremony. Bill Smetanuk, 67-year-old Romanian, brought out of retirement to supervise the track-laying from Squamish to North Vancouver, drove the last spike.

Closing of the gap in the PGE's 469-mile line to Prince George began in February, 1955, when crews set out from Squamish and Horseshoe and worked to meet each other. They used 150,000 ties, 150 tons of rail, and 2,000,000 pounds of blasting dynamite before they were finished. The total cost was $10,500,000.

Premier Bennett said today the running of the first work train over the southern extension of the PGE had opened "a new era of development" for the province.

"It means the old white elephant is now a very important animal," the premier said. "We are proud to have made this railway into a first class enterprise."

Mr. Bennett said there is still some ballasting to be done before the first passenger train is ready to run over the extension early in August.

Indians Must Pay Duty on Goods Brought From U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian Indians on reservations must pay duty on goods they import from the United States for their own use, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled today.

The court's judgment follows a test case heard last February in which Louis Francis, 34-year-old Indian from the St. Regis Indian Reserve on the St. Lawrence River near Cornwall, Ont., claimed Indians were exempt from such duties under an international treaty signed in 1794.

Francis' argument previously was rejected by Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron of the Exchequer Court.

Inquest Tuesday

An inquest into the traffic death of Wah Pao Lee has been scheduled for 10.30 Tuesday morning at Hayward's funeral home. The elderly Chinese was crossing the street when he was hit by a car driven by Lawrence L. Y. Chan, 19. Police are seeking witnesses to the accident.

Screaming Boy, 14, Thrown Into River

MONTREAL (CP)—Two young boys and a woman were brutally slain in Montreal this weekend as the city was shocked with a rash of apparently unconnected killings.

One boy was thrown screaming to drown in the St. Lawrence river and the other died from head wounds inflicted by a rough piece of concrete. The woman was beaten and stabbed to death.

The woman, 27-year-old Aldes Levesque, was beaten around the eyes with a hammer and suffered knife wounds in her throat. Her fiancé, a 30-year-old salesman with a history of mental illness, gave himself up to police early this morning.

Police said they knew nothing of the slaying until the man came to detective headquarters and said he had killed the woman in her three-room apartment in residential Rosemount.

Yvon Lafrance, 14, of suburban Ville la Salle, and

Robert Jones, 9, of Montreal North, were the victims of crimes described by police as being "among the coldest-blooded ever perpetrated in this area."

The body of the Lafrance boy was found by police Sunday afternoon an hour after he had been thrown into the St. Lawrence river by two unidentified men.

The Jones youth, his skull smashed, was discovered in scrub brush in northeast Montreal after two days of searching by a party of more than 400 police and volunteers.

Montreal North police said early today they are trailing a suspect in the death of the Jones lad. They said he is a man who recently offered him a job.

Robert Jones was missed by his parents early Friday night. He apparently had left after dinner for a Montreal North fair-ground after being refused permission to "help blow up some balloons" there.

An autopsy is expected to determine whether the boy was killed by a sex deviate. He was found fully clothed.

The boy's friend escaped and ran sobbing to police. Officers searched until they found the body in a culvert into which it had been swept by the current.

Police said there was another witness to the crime—an elderly man who had been fishing nearby. He backed up the Morrisette boy's description.

He said the victim had no chance to escape the sudden attack.

Cash for Pay Cheques Granted to Government

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition leader Drew today announced his party's willingness to permit speedy passage of the government's June supply bill.

He made the Commons announcement after Prime Minister St. Laurent promised there will be no early adjournment of Parliament if the bill is given speedy passage.

Prime Minister St. Laurent had asked Friday for quick approval of an interim supply bill to replenish the government's "virtually exhausted" treasury.

Rising at the House opening, the prime minister said if a month's supply of money to carry on government financial operations is granted at the present time "it would be our intention to proceed with the business of the session in the normal way."

Before the end of this month, the government would ask for a further grant of interim supply and continue the session.

Later, the House moved into committee of the whole to discuss a resolution preceding introduction of an interim supply bill authorizing the spending of $301,568,166.51.

The amount includes one-twelfth of the main estimates, $364,409,639.92; one-twelfth of six special items covering seasonal work, $652,148.34; and one-quarter of the supplementary estimates tabled last week, $36,506,378.25.

Some newspapers have speculated on a romance between the prince and princess.

But the welcome ceremony went according to the polite protocol. Prince Bertil smiled brightly at Princess Margaret and she smiled back. After greeting they boarded a car together and drove six miles into the city.

Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh spent half an hour today aboard the Canadian destroyer St. Laurent.

They expressed their thanks to the crew of the ship which, with two British vessels, accompanied the royal yacht Britannia on its trip from England to Sweden last week.

The royal couple made similar visits to the British war ships, Defender and Delight.

CORPSE OF SNOWMAN EMBALMED IN ICE?

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Villagers high in the Himalayas have sent out word the corpse of an Abominable Snowman has been found embalmed in the ice of a mountain crevasse.

Peter John Webster, a British tea planter who has climbed all over the Himalayas, said Sunday he hopes to go back up there next year and investigate the villagers' story.

Stories of the superstitious mountaineers have told of huge tracks in the Himalayan snows. Some claim to have seen the snowman, half man, half beast.

Eisenhower Walks in Hospital—But Question Is: Will He Run?

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower took another little walk, suffered less pain, and made a start toward resuming the duties of his office.

The doctors said Eisenhower took "walking exercises" today on his own initiative.

A noon medical bulletin said: "He walked with but little support... for 20 feet... sat in a chair for 15 minutes and then walked, again with little support, back to bed."

Sunday—only 30 hours after his emergency surgery—the president walked about 30 feet with attendants partly supporting him. Today the only assistance he had was a hand on the elbow.

Mrs. Eisenhower was in the room on both occasions.

Eisenhower conferred for 10 minutes today with his chief assistant, Sherman Adams, and reached several decisions including the designation of Vice-President Nixon to represent him at two forthcoming state functions.

Adams and other White House aides set up a temporary headquarters near the president's hospital room, to facilitate consulting him about government business.

Asked whether it would be correct to say Eisenhower now has "resumed his job," less than three days after his operation, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty replied: "I would think so."

FED THROUGH VEINS

The medical bulletin said antibiotics still are being administered to the president and that he is still being fed through the veins.

Still unanswered was the big question—whether Eisenhower's new bout with serious illness would cause him to change his mind about his Feb. 29 decision to bid for reelection.

Hagerty said Eisenhower himself had dropped no slightest hint regarding his plans. The surgeon who performed the operation, Maj.-Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, said there is no medical reason for Eisenhower to abandon his second-term decision.

FOUR DOUBT HE'LL RUN

An informal poll of White House correspondents today showed 10 believe Eisenhower will run for a second term and only four believe he will not.

Republican Party leaders took comfort from the cheering medical reports on Eisenhower.

They seized on the medical forecast of "rapid and complete recovery" as an indication Eisenhower would lead the party again. Democrats generally expressed happiness at the apparent success of the operation, but some took up the "part-time president" theme again.

LONDON DUBIOUS

But across the Atlantic, in London, newspapers headlined stories by their Washington correspondents that the American people are increasingly dubious of Eisenhower's physical fitness.

"Growing U.S. View He Should Quit Fight," headlined The Daily Mail.

"There is deep disquiet over President Eisenhower's health despite the optimistic and almost ebullient statements of doctors," The Mail says.

At Chicago Sunday night, the front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, Adlai Stevenson, bluntly said he'll make a campaign issue of "the president's health... and conduct of office" if he gets the nomination.

'Follow Our Example' Bulganin Advises St. Laurent in Letter

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Nikolai Bulganin has sent a letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent urging Canada to follow Russia's example and reduce armed forces, the Soviet news agency Tass said Sunday.

The letter, similar to one Bulganin sent Prime Minister Antonio Segni of Italy, was delivered last Friday.

Earlier the Soviet leader sent letters on disarmament to Prime Minister Eden, President Eisenhower, French Premier Guy Mollet and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

In the letter to St. Laurent Bulganin said:

"I would like to exchange views with you on such an important international problem as the disarmament one, in the examination of which both our countries are taking part in the United Nations disarmament subcommittee.

"It must be said now that many years of discussions in the United Nations have failed to yield positive results. However, we cannot help recognizing that the solution of this problem, particularly with the appearance of such new types of weapons of mass destruction as atom and hydrogen bombs, is becoming more and more urgent.

"I think, Mr. Prime Minister, that you will agree with me that in the present conditions of a definite easing of the international tension there are favorable possibilities for the taking by the states of concrete measures concerning the reduction of armaments and of armed forces.

"The Soviet government has received with satisfaction the statement of the foreign minister of Canada, L. B. Pearson, made in the House of Commons on March 20, that Canada will do all she can towards the reaching of an effective disarmament, which would help to reduce the international tension and would ease the settlement of other unsolved problems.

"We are deeply convinced that the implementation by the states of measures for the reduction of their armaments and armed forces, before the moment at which an international agreement concerning that problem will be reached, would promote the establishment of more confidence between the states and the strengthening of universal peace.

"Guided by these very considerations, the Soviet government took the decision on a new and considerable reduction of the armed forces of the Soviet Union by 1,200,000 men accompanied by a corresponding reduction of armaments and military expenditure over and above the earlier carried out reduction of the Soviet armed forces by 640,000 men."

In Ottawa, an external affairs department spokesman said the Russian-language letter was delivered by Russian Ambassador Dmitri S. Chuvahin and is under study by the prime minister and the department.

and endeavor to undermine the West's position in an unscrupulous manner. Above all they want to smash first the mighty protective shield of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and to drive the United States from Europe so that Europe will fall like a ripe fruit into the Soviet lap."

AUSTRALIA HURRICANE DAMAGE $22 MILLIONS

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—The worst storm in 25 years battered 500 miles of the New South Wales coast Sunday with hurricane-force winds causing damage estimated at more than $22,000,000.

Sydney was a city of chaos as winds up to 84 miles an hour—the second strongest ever recorded here—roared through the streets, tearing roofs off houses, smashing windows, toppling walls and blowing down electric wires.

The storm was felt from Newcastle, about 100 miles north of Sydney, to the Victoria state border. Ferry services in Sydney harbor were suspended. Mountainous waves, seldom seen in the well-protected basin, buffeted steamers and tore dozens of small pleasure craft from their moorings and sank them.

ROYAL VISIT TO SWEDEN

Crowds Hail Duke On 35th Birthday

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Britain's Royal Family celebrated a birthday, prayed for President Eisenhower and attended the opening of the 1956 Olympic equestrian games Sunday. That wound up an official three-day visit to Sweden.

The Queen accompanied Sweden's King Gustaf VI to Olympic Stadium for the festive formal opening of the eight-day contests and cast an experienced eye on the horseflesh assembled for the gruelling duels.

The Duke of Edinburgh grinned broadly as he rode in the carriage of Sweden's Queen Louise to the games. It was his 35th birthday and along the route of the ride thousands of Swedes seemed to know all about it, and shouted congratulations.

Earlier, just after breakfast, the duke got congratulations by telephone from Prince Charles and Princess Anne. At the British community church the Queen and the duke prayed for the recovery of President Eisenhower.

They will spend the next week aboard the royal yacht Britannia. Princess Margaret will join them today.

The Queen plans a cocktail party Wednesday for Olympic competitors, but the remainder of the Royal Family's stay will be on an informal basis.

Saturday the Queen got a rare insight into what the "typical" Swedish family man is like today; she found out he's apt to lock himself out of his home.

The Queen and the duke visited the "typical Swedish home" of K. O. Larsson, his wife and son Hans. Larsson was waiting outside.

Then he escorted them proudly to his front door. It was locked. And Larsson didn't have the key.

Pale and nervous, Larsson started punching the doorbell. Seconds ticked by as the Queen waited politely under a blazing sun.

Eventually, Larsson's wife realized something had gone wrong. She opened the door. With a sigh of relief Larsson escorted the Queen into the house.

Swedish Music Critics Pan Barbara Pentland Composition

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Swedish music critics have given a cool reception to Barbara Pentland, the Vancouver composer whose string quartet No. 2 was performed at the world musical festival held here last Friday.

Curt Berg, music critic of Sweden's largest daily, the Dagens Nyheter, wrote: "A Canadian lady by the name of Barbara Pentland, residing in Winnipeg, had manufactured a string quartet. She was very nice looking."

Kajsa Rootzen of the Svenska Dagbladet wrote that while Miss Pentland's composition was in its way ambitious, it could not nearly be described as a pathetic practice in modern counterpoint.

Folke Toenblom of the Morgon-Tidningen wrote that her composition contained nothing at all.

The critics were unenthusiastic about the musical festival as a whole.

Comox Air Show Speed Spectacle

Inverted flying at the speed of sound, precision bombing, and a spectacular finale were the highlights of the big annual Air Force Day celebration Saturday at the Comox RCAF station.

An estimated 25,000 persons saw the breath-taking display. The show started with a lumbering Cessna aircraft taking off like a fighter under the mighty thrust of two roaring, smoking JATO rockets, and ended with a T-33 jet trainer making an eye-level swoop across the runway.

As it approached the crowd it dipped to the airstrip, and snatched up a banner bearing in huge block letters, "The End."

In between were displays by Lancasters, the CF-100 all-weather fighter, and Vampire jets.

Soviet Friendly Attitude More Dangerous—Adenauer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer called on the West today to relax "even for one moment" vigilance in the face of current friendly talk from Russia.

Adenauer called the present tactics "more dangerous than the former aggressive conduct" of the Kremlin. He said the men in the Kremlin "are still not prepared to remove the main causes of the tension of the world."

Adenauer's remarks were in an address prepared for a luncheon given in his honor by the board of governors of Yale University. Earlier the statesman received an honorary degree of doctor of laws during Yale University commencement exercises.

"Throughout the world, the Soviets aggravate existing conflicts and endeavor to undermine the West's position in an unscrupulous manner. Above all they want to smash first the mighty protective shield of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and to drive the United States from Europe so that Europe will fall like a ripe fruit into the Soviet lap."

Three 30-ton Lancaster bombers flew in formation over the field, then climbed in a "Prince of Wales" break. Later they gave an exhibition of bombing, resulting in narrow misses by two aircraft and a direct hit with a "stick" of bombs from the third.

One of the stars of the show was FO Gerry Gagne, who took off in a CF-100 in a mock scramble, and concluded his exhibition with a 10-second pass over the field upside down. The aircraft can manage only 12 seconds of inverted flight before "conking out."

While a sailplane built on the station soared overhead, a DC-3 executed a mock supply drop, sending 10 packages earthward on 10 candy-striped parachutes.

Plants of such specialized flowers as dahlias, roses and chrysanthemums will show good results from such a feeding in any type of soil. Gladioli should be fed as soon as the flower spikes can be seen or felt in the sheaths.

In most cases, fertilizer applied to flowering plants before the buds are visible will increase foliage production at the expense of flowers.

This is the reason why the late summer and fall blooming perennials will not receive their share of liquid feeding until later in the season.

I HAVE an untidy habit of copying out bits of prose or poetry, slipping them between the pages of books, and then forgetting where I put them.

However, I always find them in the end and often I chance upon them unexpectedly and have a pleasant little dawdle.

And, this morning, while I was dusting, these three snippets fell out of a dog-eared textbook on Latin grammar.

The first goes:

"I get on best with women." She laughed and crumbled her cake. "Men are such unknown country. I never know how to take."

What they say, nor how they mean it. And—oh well they ARE so queer. So don't you know! So—this and that. You know what I mean my dear!

"With women it's so much simpler." She laughed and duddled her muff. "One doesn't have to keep smiling—Now what have I said? It's enough To chat over nothing important. That is such a rest, I find."

In these strenuous days, don't you know, dear? They put SUCH a strain on the mind."

That's by Katherine Mansfield. Cruel but clever, because there's hardly a word of description and yet the woman's clearly drawn. She's a vanishing type, perhaps, but I still know one or two.

The next snippet was written by Nancy Cameron, whoever she may be.

"The most beautiful thing in Korea, though, is not the scenery nor the dress, but the faces. The older the face, the more beautiful it seems to be. This, too, I have wondered about, and it seems that this beauty is the product of serenity—hardly won, the beauty is a product of tragedy. It is a product in that with maturity a Korean learns that sorrow and what we call tragedy are not the uncommon or fearsome things we think them to be, but an integral part of all life. . . . The youth don't have this perfect serenity nor this beauty. They have instead pretty faces and restless hands. It is the old faces, the suffering believers' faces that are beautiful."

And that, to me, is a refreshingly different viewpoint from the one we get most often on this continent.

The third piece is by A. E. Housman. I copied it out with feeling on a grumpy winter morning. Today it makes me laugh. "Yonder see the morning blink: The sun is up, and up must I, To wash and dress and eat and drink And look at things and talk and think And work, and God knows why."

Oh often have I washed and dressed And what's to show for all my pain? Let me lie abed and rest: Ten thousand times I've done my best And all's to do again."

And that should bring cold comfort to those who suffer from early morning blues!

YOUR HEALTH

Some Views of Insomnia

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation.

Many persons ask what they should do about insomnia. I ought to be an expert on this because I have suffered from insomnia ever since my influenza in 1918. For a year and more after that it seemed as if I would never learn to sleep again. Because I had to work hard every day to do my job at the University and to earn my living in my office, for some time I just had to take a sleeping tablet every night. Without it I could not have kept going. Medical friends said, "Wait, do nothing, and eventually, out of sheer fatigue, you will start sleeping again." The difficulty was that with great responsibilities weighing on me, I could not stop long enough to try such an experiment. I was in much the situation of a concert pianist who goes from city to city giving recitals. After each evening concert he is so lit-up that he cannot possibly quiet down and sleep until perhaps two or three in the morning.

But if he gets only a few hours' sleep, he'll be a nervous wreck next day. How, then, is he to practice all morning and then give a good performance at night? As in my case, the only solution may be to take a pill. Civilized life for some of us is so strenuous and demanding and stirring that at night the brain hasn't time in which to quiet down. As I say of myself, at night I cannot shut off the machinery. I may not have anything to worry about, and I may succeed fairly well in shutting off my stream of thought, but still I may lie quiet for an hour without the coming of sleep.

RIDICULOUS DOGMA
Many persons have written to disagree with me for saying that some persons should take sleeping-pills. There are many persons—and even doctors—who say that barbiturates are as bad as morphine, but that, of course, is utterly ridiculous. I have, of course, seen a few persons who became addicted to barbiturates, but in my long years of practice I have seen very few of these, and all of them were undisciplined, somewhat psychotic persons before they got the drug and started taking too much. They took too much because they were lacking in self-control and had a poor nervous system. Many of them were so nervous that they couldn't get any sleep without some medicine. And if they got no sleep, they were all upset and on-edge the next day.

There are two main types of insomnia: one, in which the man has trouble getting to sleep—perhaps around 10 o'clock—the other type in which he sleeps pretty well until four in the morning and then wakes and can't get back to sleep again. The person of the first type often needs a sleeping-pill which will act for a long enough time to carry him through the night. The other one needs a short-acting drug which, after giving him two hours more sleep, will allow him to wake without a hang-over.

What can one do to avoid insomnia? In my experience the worst thing one can do, when troubled with insomnia, is to work at night. In many cases this seems to get the brain lit-up so that the person cannot "turn off the machinery." If I speak in the evening to a large audience of people, I get keyed-up, and then I cannot sleep without perhaps two pills.

There is a trick in getting to sleep. If a man will read in bed until he feels sleepy, and will then quickly turn out the light and lie down, he is likely to fall asleep. But if he gets up and perhaps goes to the bathroom, and then closes a window, and then waits until his wife has settled down, his desire for sleep is gone, and it may not return for hours.

If a person is not getting enough sleep at night, he can build up his "sleep-average" by trying, on Saturday or Sunday, to get a nap after luncheon. Such a nap can give a nervous, tense and tired mother a great lift. Again, the nap can be obtained perhaps only if the woman will lie down quickly and shut her eyes. It may help to wear an eye-shade, such as can be bought in a drug store. In summer, such a shade can help some persons to sleep longer in the mornings.

WIFE WHO WOULD HELP

One of my favorite stories in the Bible (Exodus 17:8-12) is one that expresses vividly what should be the biggest job for all good wives—particularly wives of husbands who, because of the importance of their work, have come in a way to "belong" to thousands of people. Such a husband often has to neglect his wife. Then it may help her to pick up her Bible and read how, during one of the early battles of the Children of Israel they could win only as long as Moses held up his hands. When his hands "became heavy" and he let them fall, the Amalekites prevailed. Because of this, Aaron and Hur "stayed up his hands . . . and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun." With this, the battle was won.

Many a time I have said to a disgruntled wife: "Your job is a big one and an important one—it is to hold up your fine husband's hands. Thus, you can have a share in his work, and a proud share. How much better it is to help him in this way than to stand off and complain that your life seems lonely and empty?"

Dominion Stores Limited

TO THE SHOPPING PUBLIC

Dominion Stores Limited is a public Canadian Company, which means that anyone in Canada who so desires may purchase and own shares in the Company. At present more than 3,400 men and women in all walks of life are the owners of Dominion.

Recently, Dominion mailed to these shareholders a comprehensive 40-page report on all details of their Company's activities during the fiscal year ended March 17th, 1956.

Dominion believes that in addition to reporting to the shareholders whose investment makes the Company possible, it should report also to the shopping public, whose ever-increasing patronage has built Dominion from three small stores in 1919 to more than 300 today.

Following are some of the highlights from Dominion's 36th Annual Report:

- Customers set a new record of patronage, spending more than $219 million at stores of the Dominion organization. (See below the breakdown of where each customer's money goes.)
- Plans were completed for expansion of Dominion from coast to coast, with stores in every province.
- All shares of Thrift Stores Limited, operating in Quebec and Eastern Ontario, were purchased.
- All shares of Town and Country Food Centre Limited, operating in Alberta, were purchased.

In view of this "Aim", the Annual Report incorporated a "Special Report on Ever-Increasing Efficiency," revealing how ever-increasing efficiency in low-cost distribution of food has won Dominion thousands of new customers every year, bringing ever-increasing benefits to farmers, fishermen, manufacturers, packers, railways, truckers and other suppliers in every province of Canada. And at the same time provided more convenient shopping facilities and the lowest possible food prices to more and more Canadian homemakers every year.

BREAD PRICE UP 1 CENT; FIRST RISE SINCE 1953

Canadian Bakeries Ltd. today increased the retail price of bread from 15 to 16 cents in the first price boost since April, 1953.

"We have been putting this off for months, but finally had to do it," said Ed Hallier, manager of the Victoria plant. "It has been forced by the rising cost of materials, production, distribution and labor."

The company's Vancouver operation also increased the price today by one cent.

Other Victoria bakeries continue to sell bread for from 12 to 15 cents retail, but other boosts are expected.

If a dog can write a column, I suppose a cat can write a letter. So:

"Dear Judy Boots Streak.
"After perusing your column regarding licensing felines it is an appropriate time to relate my harrowing experience re collars."

"Although I was only doing my duty, since the robins were eating all my neighbor's cherries, my mistress that I own decided to 'bell me'."

"I suffered great indignation as only a princess feline can, as I am of royal descent, namely a Blue Point Siamese."

"While climbing my favorite tree one day I lost my balance and somehow got my collar caught on a branch. With my beautiful blue eyes protruding out of my head and having used up all but one of my nine lives I was rescued in the nick of time by my mistress."

"My collar with the pretty bell now gathers dust in the kitchen drawer but I have an agreement with my family for every robin I take a fancy to I kill three mice."

"Sincerely yours,
"HRH Princess Chi Chi Dillabough."

The dog J.B. has instructed me to say I am not surprised at the cat losing her balance in the trees, most cats tend to be unbalanced anyway.

But J.B. agrees that, if cats aren't smart enough to avoid hanging themselves to the nearest limb, perhaps some other solution will have to be evolved before cats gain equal rights with dogs, including the equal right to be licensed.

J.B. thinks, possibly cats could be equipped with waistcoats. Then they could carry their licences in a little transparent plastic wallet in a vest pocket and display same when asked to by the authorities.

Or perhaps, J.B. thinks, cats would rather wear hats. Then they could put cards with their licence numbers in their hat bands, like the movie and TV reporters do with their press cards.

If cats don't like either of those solutions, J.B. says, it would be a simple matter to provide them with anklets suitably engraved with name and number.

J.B. doubts if even a cat could hang himself on an anklet.

And if they can band birds, J.B. says, why can't they band cats?

It is time cats and birds had more in common, J.B. says.

As for me, I am strictly neutral, but most of the constituents can guess whose side I am neutral on.

Evacuation Plan Approved Here

Esquimalt Lone Dissenter When Dispersal Program Discussed by Civil Defence Board

Decision to evacuate Greater Victoria in event of warning of enemy air attack was reached by the district civil defence board today.

But Esquimalt delegates stuck to their contention that evacuation is "just humbug," and Reeve A. C. Wurtele said he could not recommend such action to the people of his municipality.

The board will invite here a team of CD experts from Ottawa to guide final planning and preparation of a pamphlet and map to direct all householders should the need to flee their homes arise.

The decision was reached by a 12-man board representing Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Langford, Colwood and View Royal.

Today's meeting followed presentation last week of a 12-page pamphlet on evacuation methods for this area by CD coordinator Roger Peachey.

Members of the board studied the plan in the interim and preface their final decision with explanation that after many meetings, without meaning to scare the public and on the advice of Canada's top civil defence planners, a plan to evacuate was adopted. On the advice of these experts in the future, it is also subject to amendment.

Reeve Wurtele opened today's discussion, stating he was in full agreement with most of the proposals in the pamphlet. But he quoted The Canadian Army Journal and a CD pamphlet both published last year, which indicated the tremendous value of shelters.

"It would be very dangerous to put thousands of people in the open when a bomb might be exploded," he stated.

He said he had great faith in the RCAF to put an enemy off target. He said also that the army and navy did not plan to evacuate. "I think if you ask them, they plan to get to shelters."

"I cannot recommend to the people of Esquimalt that we adopt any evacuation plan. I would suggest army and navy officials be invited here to comment," said the reeve.

BEST MATERIAL
View Royal representative, W. E. Cole said with respect to the pamphlet held by the reeve.

"The printed word is often out of date by the time it reaches the reader's hands," he said. CD headquarters is staffed with the "best material the country affords" and said the branch works hand in glove with the best military brains on the continent.

In their opinion the best defence now is dispersal. He said he learned during a recent trip to Canada's CD headquarters that any air activity in the direction of logical attack would be noted.

He said the U.S. air force, the DEW line and other protective screens would combine to give Victoria six hours warning. The only delay might be cabinet consideration of whether the public should be warned.

"Reeve Wurtele is still fighting a new war with last war weapons—a common fallacy," he said.

"I object to the remark that I am not keeping myself up to date. I think I am," he retorted the reeve.

Woman Must Return Fortune in Gifts

Wealthy City Man Gave
U.S. Friend $169,661

A federal judge of Fort Worth, Texas, has ordered Mrs. Marie McCally Zips, wife of a real estate manager, to return $169,661.25 given to her by wealthy George Westinghouse Jr., 73, of Victoria, according to an Associated Press dispatch received today.

Judge Joseph Estes ruled that Mr. Westinghouse was mentally incompetent to look after the affairs of his business when he made the gift to Mrs. Zips in 1955.

Mr. Westinghouse, son of George Westinghouse, who invented air brakes and founded the large Westinghouse industry, is now at Hollywood Sanatorium, New Westminster.

The civil suit against the woman was instituted by the Royal Trust Company of Canada, acting in the capacity of a committee in lunacy for the patient. The sons and daughters requested the trust company to recover the gift money.

The company has also another suit pending against Patricia Pierce, 42, of Denver, who allegedly received from Mr. Westinghouse a gift of $200,000 in money and securities.

Hugh L. Henderson, acting as solicitor for the estate, also claims that Mr. Westinghouse gave large amounts of cash and blue chip stocks to Grace Smith, a resident of England.

The administrators of the estate estimate that Mr. Westinghouse gave in all about $517,000 in gifts to strangers during the last few years.

Mr. Westinghouse, formerly a U.S. citizen, became a British subject in 1945. He has six children. They are Aubrey Harold Westinghouse of Victoria; George Thomas Westinghouse, Seattle; Agnes Sylvia Simpson, 4573 Blenkinsop Road; Violet Louise Laurie, 2625 Lansdowne Road; Richard Laurence Westinghouse, Italy; and Margaret Virginia Kunater, Austria.

Temple Trophy Won by Ashe For Third Time

Veteran Royal Victoria Yacht Club skipper Ned Ashe set two records Sunday in the annual William Head distance race for the Ben Temple trophy.

He became the only three-time winner of the trophy in the history of the race, and his sloop May D. set a new record of one hour 58 minutes for the homeward leg from William Head to the finish line.

Strong, gusty winds played havoc with most of the yachts in the race. Split sails and parted sheets were the rule rather than the exception. Only three of the 13 yachts which started were able to complete the race.

Even the winner, May D., blew out a jib on the way home as Ashe piloted on maximum sail to set the new record.

Second of the finishers was Gordon Nickells in Bendoria; third was Doxy, with a strictly family crew consisting of Hugh Botterell, his wife and three children.

Winds gusting up to 55 miles an hour near William Head.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—On what date did the First World War start? Mrs. J.D.

A.—Germany declared war against Russia Aug. 1, 1914; against France Aug. 3; Germans entered Belgium; Britain asked Germany to guarantee neutrality of Belgium by midnight Aug. 4; when this was refused Britain declared war on Germany Aug. 4.

Q.—In bridge, if one side wins two games out of three (the rubber) but the other side makes more points, who is the winner? L.N.D.

A.—Winners in bridge are judged by the total points amassed. It is not unusual for the team which gets the rubber bonus to lose in the point totals.

AOTS Organizes 51 New Clubs

GRAVENHURST, Ont. (CP)—Two hundred and fifty delegates moved into this Lake Muskoka resort during the weekend for the third national convention of the United Church of Canada service clubs known as AOTS (as one that serves).

Officers elected included: D. J. Sherwood, Toronto, president; J. A. Robinson, Vancouver, honorary president; D. R. Poole, Vancouver, advisory secretary.

The constable said he had followed Hartnell about seven blocks, watched him go through a stop light and make a U-turn on Douglas street. He caught up with Hartnell after the latter parked his car, and demanded to see his driver's licence.

"I didn't recognize him as a police officer," Hartnell said. "I thought he was a Boy Scout leader because of his hat."

Bottled Beer Sales to Midnight Win Cabinet Approval; Restaurant Rules Eased

B.C. restaurants with dining room licences for malt liquor and wines can now make sales until midnight instead of 11:30 p.m. as formerly.

Beer parlors can sell bottled beer for consumption off the premises between 11:30 and midnight, and during the tolerance period from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

These changes in the regulations of the B.C. Liquor Act were approved today by the cabinet and become effective immediately.

Regulations governing the consumption of beer in beer parlors are unchanged.

"It means that when the sale of beer for consumption on the premises ceases at 11:30 p.m., beer parlor customers will still be able to buy bottled beer up till midnight and take it home," said Col. Donald McGugan, chairman of the Board of Liquor Commissioners.

For the picnic, or for use right in the living or dining room, you'll find that the portable, disposable barbecue that's on sale in town will save a lot of work, and will add an interesting touch to the occasion. In one package is the grill, charcoal and excellent starter. All you need is a match.

A clothes basket that won't snag or stain dainty clothes is the wish of every woman. It needn't be only a wish, now, for a well-known company has put out a lightweight, soft plastic clothes basket that will hold your whole load of washing, and there'll be nary a snag or catch. In aqua, red or yellow, it costs $4.95.

Here's something new, different and very smart for the modern home. Angled steak knives that cut naturally and easily and are constructed in one piece, so that handles won't come off. Instead of the blade and handle being in a straight line, they angle sharply at the division, so that cutting is done while the hand is in a natural position. Blades, hand ground, are hollow ground surgical steel that won't rust or stain, and are easy to sharpen. The substantial sized handles of tenite look like polished bone, but won't chip or crack. A set of six in a fitted wooden case costs $29.50.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to find any of the items mentioned in the columns.

Believed to be from the U.S., she was spotted Sunday night by the crew of the Vancouver tug Mogul.

Thrown Into St. Lawrence

MONTREAL (CP)—Two young boys and a woman were brutally slain in Montreal this weekend as the city was shocked with a rash of apparently unconnected killings.

The woman, 27-year-old Aldea Levesque, was beaten around the eyes with a hammer and suffered knife wounds in her throat. Her fiancé, a 30-year-old salesman with a history of mental illness, gave himself up to police early this morning.

Police said they knew nothing of the slaying until the man came to detective headquarters.

RAIL RATES GO UP
STARTING JULY 1

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners said today it would grant an interim freight rate increase to the country's major railways July 1. Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways have asked for a general freight rate boost of 15 per cent. They also want an increase of 25 cents a ton on shipments of coal and coke.

Announcing the board's decision before railway counsel presented their arguments, Justice J. D. Kearney, board chairman, said the measure was to give the CNR and CPR "first aid" relief from mounting wage costs.

Marilyn Trains
In Cold Lake
For Strait Try

TORONTO (CP)—Marilyn Bell paddled around Lake Ontario for an hour Sunday but she didn't know until she left the water that its temperature was only 14 degrees above freezing (46 degrees Fahrenheit).

Coach Gus Ryder, who guided the 18-year-old marathon swimmer to her 1954 conquest of the lake, said he kept the temperature from her so she wouldn't suffer any qualms.

Marilyn is scheduled to tackle the formidable Straits of Juan de Fuca late this summer and Ryder said she will have to contend with readings in the vicinity of 50 degrees in the long haul between Victoria and Port Angeles, Wash. She stands to win $30,000.

(In this morning's swim by Ben Laughren strait temperature was about 45 degrees. Later in the summer, according to past records, it improves by a few degrees.)

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian Indians on reservations must pay duty on goods they import from the United States for their own use, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled today.

The court's judgment follows a test case heard last February in which Louis Francis, 34-year-old Indian from the St. Regis Indian Reserve on the St. Lawrence River near Cornwall, Ont., claimed Indians were exempt from such duties under an international treaty signed in 1794.

Francis' argument previously was rejected by Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron of the Exchequer Court.

Pulled From Strait
After 8 Hrs. 40 Min.

By Radio-Telephone from Times Reporter Tony Dickason

Husky Ben Laughren of Victoria was pulled from the chill waters of the Juan de Fuca Strait at 2:29 p.m. today in his fourth attempt to swim from Victoria to Port Angeles.

The treacherous rip tides around Race Rocks, which had held Ben for two and one-half hours, and the chilling cold of the water, between 45 and 50 degrees, were instrumental in defeating the 270-pound swimmer.

"I am going to try again in five or seven days," the tired swimmer said after being hauled out of the water eight hours and 40 minutes after his starting time.

"I had a sore arm for the last two hours and I found the tide rips pretty bad."

"We are getting better all the time, though."

Ben's fourth attempt was the longest by far of his assaults on the strait. In the time he was in the water he covered 11 miles from the Ogden Point breakwater and approximately 15½ miles from his starting point off the Chinese Cemetery.

Tides, Whirlpools Sapped Strength

The spot where Laughren was pulled out of the water was about one mile southwest of Race Rocks, the same position where strait conqueror Bert Thomas was stopped in his third attempt June 23 of last year.

Laughren entered the rip tides about noon. The ferocity of the tides and whirlpools sapped the swimmer's strength and stopped him from taking advantage of the flood tide expected from the west.

Ben entered the water off Harling Point at 5:49 this morning under lowering skies. He swam the 50 yards from the accompanying vessel Meota to the rocky shore, touched briefly, waved and struck out for Port Angeles.

At 8 a.m. he was swimming at a brisk 32 strokes per minute with his unorthodox style and caught a tide at 10 a.m. that swept him westward and then forward toward Race Rocks.

At 11:30 a.m., just before he entered the tide rips, Ben had to swim briskly near Pedder

Bay as the tide had slackened and he had to make a strong attempt to get past the rocks in order to catch the flood tide.

He was fed glucose and orange juice every hour by trainer Ove Witt and navigator Stan Page while he remained in the water. At his noon feeding, he was puffing and blowing slightly and told trainer Witt that "I feel very warm. I have all the feeling in my body."

Earlier, Ben had joked to his accompanying trio of vessels that he would be in Port Angeles "for tea and crumpets."

As well as being the longest time in the water in his four attempts, Ben's eight hours, 40 minutes was second only to strait conqueror Bert Thomas. Apart from his successful attempt July 7, 1955, from Port Angeles to Victoria, Thomas spent 10 hours, 19 minutes, and nine hours, 11 minutes swimming in two previous attempts.

This was the 43rd attempt on the strait, dating back to 1933, when three swimmers tried and failed.

Cash for Pay Cheques
Granted at Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Commons today approved an interim supply bill authorizing government expenditures of more than $301,000,000 in June after Prime Minister St. Laurent's plea for swift passage was accepted by opposition groups.

The House debated the preliminary supply resolution for 70 minutes before giving it approval. Then the supply bill was passed through all its stages in five minutes without discussion.

Rising at the House opening, the prime minister said if a month's supply of money to carry on government financial operations is supplementary estimates tabled granted at the present time "it would be our intention to proceed with the business of the session in the normal way."

Before the end of this month, the government would ask for a further grant of interim supply and continue the session.

Later, the House moved into committee of the whole to discuss a resolution preceding introduction of an interim supply bill authorizing the spending of $301,568,166.51.

The amount includes one-twelfth of the main estimates, $264,409,639.92; one-twelfth of six special items covering seasonal work, $652,148.34; and one-quarter of the current financial operations—supplementary estimates tabled last week, $36,506,378.25.

Eisenhower Walks
In Hospital Room

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower took another little walk, suffered less pain, and made a start toward resuming the duties of his office.

The doctors said Eisenhower took "walking exercises" today on his own initiative.

A noon medical bulletin said: "He walked with but little support... for 20 feet... sat in a chair for 15 minutes and then walked, again with little support, back to bed."

Sunday—only 30 hours after his emergency surgery—the president walked about 30 feet with attendants partly supporting him. Today the only assistance he had was a hand on the elbow.

Mrs. Eisenhower was in the room on both occasions.

Eisenhower conferred for 10 minutes today with his chief assistant, Sherman Adams, and reached several decisions including the designation of Vice-President Nixon to represent him at two forthcoming state functions.

Adams and other White House aides set up a temporary headquarters near the president's hospital room, to facilitate consulting him about government business.

Asked whether it would be correct to say Eisenhower now has "resumed his job," less than three days after his operation, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty replied: "I would think so."

The medical bulletin said antibiotics still are being administered to the president and that he is still being fed through the veins.

Still unanswered was the big question whether Eisenhower's new bout with serious illness would cause him to change his mind about his Feb. 29 decision to bid for re-election.

AUSTRALIA HURRICANE DAMAGE $22 MILLIONS

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—The worst storm in 25 years battered 500 miles of the New South Wales coast Sunday with hurricane-force winds causing damage estimated at more than $22,000,000.

Sydney was a city of chaos as winds up to 84 miles an hour—the second strongest ever recorded here—roared through the streets, tearing roofs off houses, smashing windows, toppling walls and blowing down electric wires.

The storm was felt from Newcastle, about 100 miles north of Sydney, to the Victoria state border.

Ferry services in Sydney harbor were suspended. Mountainous waves, seldom seen in the well-protected basin, buffeted steamers and tore dozens of small pleasure craft from their moorings and sank them.

ROYAL VISIT TO SWEDEN

Crowds Hail Duke On 35th Birthday

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Britain's Royal Family celebrated a birthday, prayed for President Eisenhower and attended the opening of the 1956 Olympic equestrian games Sunday. That would up an official three-day visit to Sweden.

The Queen accompanied Sweden's King Gustaf VI to Olympic Stadium for the festive formal opening of the eight-day equestrian games. The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, who is 35 today, were the guests of honor at the ceremony.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, who is 35 today, were the guests of honor at the ceremony. The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, who is 35 today, were the guests of honor at the ceremony.

Earlier, just after breakfast, the duke got congratulations by telephone from Prince Charles and Princess Anne. At the British community church the Queen and the duke prayed for the recovery of President Eisenhower. They will spend the next week board the royal yacht Britannia. Princess Margaret will join them today.

The Queen plans a cocktail party Wednesday for Olympic competitors, but the remainder of the Royal Family's stay will be on an informal basis.

Saturday the Queen got a rare insight into what the "typical" Swedish family man is like today; she found out he's apt to lock himself out of his home.

The Queen and the duke visited the "typical Swedish home" of K. O. Larsson, his wife and son Hans. Larsson was waiting outside.

Then he escorted them proudly to his front door. It was locked. And Larsson didn't have the key.

Fale and nervous, Larsson started punching the doorbell. Seconds ticked by as the Queen waited politely under a blazing sun.

Eventually, Larsson's wife realized something had gone wrong. She opened the door. With a sigh of relief Larsson escorted the Queen into the house.

Swedish Music Critics Pan Barbara Pentland Composition

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Swedish music critics have given a cool reception to Barbara Pentland, the Vancouver composer whose string quartet No. 2 was performed at the world musical festival held here last Friday.

Curt Berg, music critic of Sweden's largest daily, the Dagens Nyheter, wrote: "A Canadian lady by the name of Barbara Pentland, residing in Winnipeg, had manufactured a string quartet. She was very nice looking."

Kajsa Rootzen of the Svenska Dagbladet wrote that while Miss Pentland's composition was in its way ambitious, it could more nearly be described as a pathetic practice in modern counterpoint.

Folkie Toenblom of the Morgon-Tidningen wrote that her composition contained nothing at all.

The critics were unenthusiastic about the musical festival as a whole.

'Follow Our Example' Bulganin Advises St. Laurent in Letter

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Nikolai Bulganin has sent a letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent urging Canada to follow Russia's example and reduce armed forces, the Soviet news agency Tass said Sunday.

The letter, similar to one Bulganin sent Prime Minister Antonio Segni of Italy, was delivered last Friday.

Earlier the Soviet leader sent letters on disarmament to Prime Minister Eden, President Eisenhower, French Premier Guy Mollet and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

In the letter to St. Laurent Bulganin said:

"I would like to exchange views with you on such an important international problem as the disarmament one, in the examination of which both our countries are taking part in the United Nations disarmament subcommittee.

"It must be said now that many years of discussions in the United Nations have failed to yield positive results. However, we cannot help recognizing that the solution of this problem, particularly with the appearance of such new types of weapons of mass destruction as atom and hydrogen bombs, is becoming more and more urgent.

"I think, Mr. Prime Minister, that you will agree with me that in the present conditions of a definite easing of the international tension there are favorable possibilities for the taking by the states of concrete measures concerning the reduction of armaments and of armed forces.

"The Soviet government has received with satisfaction the statement of the foreign minis-

Comox Air Show Speed Spectacle

Inverted flying at the speed of sound, precision bombing, and a spectacular finale were the highlights of the big annual Air Force Day celebration Saturday at the Comox RCAF station.

An estimated 25,000 persons saw the breath-taking display.

The show started with a lumbering Canso aircraft taking off like a fighter under the mighty thrust of two roaring, smoking JATO rockets, and ended with a T-33 jet trainer making an eye-level swoop across the runway.

As it approached the crowd it dipped to the airstrip, and snatched up a banner bearing in huge block letters, "The End."

In between were displays by Lancasters, the CF-100 all-weather fighter, and Vampire jets.

DIRECT HIT

Three 30-ton Lancaster bombers flew in formation over the field, then climbed in a "Princess of Wales" break. Later they gave an exhibition of bombing, resulting in narrow misses by two aircraft and a direct hit with a "stick" of bombs from the third.

One of the stars of the show was FO Gerry Gagne, who took off in a CF-100 in a mock scramble, and concluded his exhibition with a 10-second pass over the field upside down. The aircraft can manage only 12 seconds of inverted flight before "conking out."

While a sailplane built on the station soared overhead, a DC-3 executed a mock supply drop, sending 10 packages earthward on 10 candy-striped parachutes.

Soviet Friendly Attitude More Dangerous—Adenauer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer called on the West today not to relax "even for one moment" its vigilance in the face of current friendly talk from Russia.

Adenauer called the present tactics "more dangerous than the former aggressive conduct" of the Kremlin. He said the men in the Kremlin "are still not prepared to remove the main causes of the tension of the world."

Adenauer's remarks were in an address prepared for a luncheon given in his honor by the board of governors of Yale University. Earlier the statesman received an honorary degree of doctor of laws during Yale University commencement exercises.

"Throughout the world, the Soviets aggravate existing conflicts and endeavor to undermine the West's position in an unscrupulous manner. Above all they want to smash first the mighty protective shield of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and to drive the United States from Europe so that Europe will fall like a ripe fruit into the Soviet lap."
